

Quash Charges Against Seven Firms as U. S. Rests Oil Case

Government Also Drops
Charges Against One Individual

COURT IN RECESS Copies of Petroleum Code Not Admitted As Evidence

Madison — (U) — The government rested its gasoline price-fixing conspiracy case against 19 oil companies and 45 individuals at the end of the sixth week of trial today, after dismissal of charges against seven corporations and one individual.

Before the government concluded, Chief Defense Counsel William J. Donovan renewed his attempt to have copies of the NRA petroleum code and President Roosevelt's designation of Secretary Harold L. Ickes as petroleum administrator, admitted as evidence. Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone denied Donovan's motion and suggested he offer the documents later as part of the defense case.

Court adjourned until Monday, when Donovan said he would offer a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal of the remaining defendants.

Publications Included
The seven corporations freed yesterday by Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone, on the motion of Special Prosecutor Hammond Chaffetz, included all three trade publications accused of conspiring with the oil firms to raise and fix midwestern gasoline prices in 1935 and 1936.

Those cleared of charges yesterday were:
The Tide Water Associated Oil company; Deep Rock Oil corporation; Louisiana Oil Refining company; Cities Service Export Oil company, a former subsidiary of Cities Service company; Chicago Journal of Commerce Publishing company; W. C. Platt company, of Cleveland, O., publisher of Platt's Oilgram; National Petroleum Publishing company, of Cleveland, publisher of the National Petroleum News, and Warren C. Platt, of Cleveland president of the Platt publications.

Ask Acquittal
Charges against officers of the Tidewater, Cities Service Export, and Louisiana companies, as individuals, were not dismissed. No official of the Deep Rock company or the Chicago Journal of Commerce was on trial.

Attorneys for the trade publications opposed the dismissal of charges against the journals in this manner and asked Judge Stone to order the jury to bring in a verdict of acquittal, but the court said the dismissal served the same purpose of removing the possibility of further jeopardy to these defendants.

Although the thirty-sixth and final government witness testified yesterday, Chaffetz advised the court he wanted to read some minor matters into the record today before the government rested its case. Some 821 exhibits already are part of the record.

Anti-Freeze Solution Blamed for 2 Deaths

Battle Creek, Mich. — (U) — Dr. Wilbur N. Putnam, coroner, blamed the drinking of an anti-freeze solution for the death of two transients here last night.

The dead are: Matthew King, Detroit, and William Bittner, East Cleveland, Ohio.

Police said they were registered yesterday evening at the city jail as transients for a night's lodging and shortly afterwards were taken violently ill. They died at a hospital.

House Tax Group Considers Proposal to Ease Burden On Small Business Firms

Washington — (U) — A house tax subcommittee talked today of aiding little business men by reducing the tax burden on perhaps 25 per cent of the nation's small firms.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ky.) said some system might be worked out for graduating taxes on the small firms on a lowered level.

No decisions were made on how this might be done, he said, but "we are hoping to lessen their burden." He added:

"They have more need of retaining their net income, relatively, to build up their businesses." He said there was "quite some disparity" between the relative tax burdens of the small and large corporations. This disparity, he said, the subcommittee may attempt to remove in part.

In 1935, he said 85 per cent of the corporations had a net income of less than $10,000. There is no question but that these fall in the category of small concerns, he said, but the committee probably will draw the line between small and big firms at somewhere above a $10,000 net income.

Cites Figures
More than 93 per cent of corporations filing tax returns had net incomes of less than $50,000 in 1935, he said.

Of the more than 500,000 corporations in the United States, the chairman asserted, about 200,000 have net incomes.

Vinson said the subcommittee also took up again today the question of relief from the undistributed profits tax for debt-ridden corporations, those which have accumulated a deficit at the start of a taxable year, and those coming out of bankruptcy or reorganization.

From Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the senate finance committee came the unqualified assertion that "there must be some modification of the undistributed profits tax."

Harrison, telegraphing this statement to Secretary Morgenthau from his home late yesterday, added that the administration should endeavor "to restore confidence to business."

Other legislators spoke in the same vein, praising Morgenthau's stand for balancing the budget through retrenchment, but private comments of some congressmen indicated they were not enthusiastic about trimming expenditures a few months before they are up for reelection.

Morgenthau had said in a speech Wednesday that some of the taxes which have inspired objections from business and the public might be ended if expenses were cut.

Raps Profits Tax
Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), like Harrison, struck at the profits tax.

Under this levy, he said, "a company can't accumulate a nickel to be used for new employment, plant expansion and reserves."

"We have all the raw materials for an unexpected prosperity and if the government would give business half a chance we could attain it."

The recurrent question of tax-exempt securities came before a house tax subcommittee. One proposal would raise taxes on persons holding such bonds by including the income therefrom in the tax base.

Senator King (D-Utah) expressed concern that Morgenthau's economy proposals might not succeed.

Politics Factor
"As long as there are public demands for federal funds," King said, "congress undoubtedly will."

ENTERS NEW 'WAR'

New York — (U) — General John J. Pershing, a little grayer but still the keen-eyed "Black Jack" of World war days, is back from France to take command in a new war—the fight against social diseases.

The 77-year-old commander of the A.E.F. returned yesterday from his annual trip abroad as head of the Battle Monuments commission.

to take over the chairmanship of the national anti-syphilis committee of the American Social Hygiene association.

Scores Dead and Many Missing in Wake of Typhoon

Tens of Thousands Homeless as Storm Hits Seven Provinces

Manila — (U) — Scores were reported dead on typhoon-ravaged Luzon island today in the wake of wind and rain which swept a path 200 miles long across seven provinces yesterday.

Nine were known dead in Manila and 20 missing. Twenty-six others were reported swept away by the raging Marikina river in Rizal province.

First aid work on outlying provinces, handicapped by disrupted communications, told of tens of thousands homeless, scores injured and many missing. Property damage was extensive.

Bulacan province reported terrific winds swept that region six hours, destroying school buildings, churches and approximately 3,000 homes, leaving an estimated 30,000 homeless.

From Subic in Zambales province came word 90 per cent of the native houses were blown down.

Three thousand were homeless in Manila, their houses blown away or inundated.

Giant waves dashed 14 heavy cargo lighters upon the rocks in Manila bay and periled other shipping. The 20 missing had been aboard 10 fishing boats in the bay.

Five Children Perish In Michigan Tragedy

Oliver, Mich. — (U) — The five children of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wright were burned to death today when fire destroyed the small building in which they had been living on the farm of Gordon Raymond, one and a half miles north of here.

The children's parents with Raymond, who lived in the other end of the building, were in the barn when the flames broke out.

Oliver firemen said the blaze was started either by an oil lamp or the small heating stove.

Denies Brazil Turns to Reds Or to Fascism

Foreign Minister Says 'Democracy Basis' of
New Program

NATION IS TRANQUIL 'Manifest Crisis' Dictated Action, Official Maintains

Rio de Janeiro — (U) — Foreign diplomats watched the unfolding of Brazil's new authoritarian program today with the assurance of Getulio Vargas' fascist nor communist "neither fascists nor communists" but had "democracy as the basis."

President Vargas, who assumed wide dictatorial power by replacing Brazil's often suspended "liberal" constitution with an authoritarian document in a bloodless coup on Wednesday, was seeking to fill out his cabinet, which moved over into the new regime almost intact.

Minister of Agriculture Odilon Braga, however, had resigned and his portfolio was offered to Fernando Costa, president of the national coffee department.

The situation in the capital was calm as though no change had taken place—and this tranquility seemed to extend through the nation.

Justifies Course
Foreign Minister Mario de Pimentel Brandao, elaborating upon previous government assurances that the dictatorial powers were necessitated by Brazilian unrest, told Rio de Janeiro's diplomatic corps yesterday that Vargas' action was dictated by demands from all parts of Brazil "for a solution to the manifest crisis."

"Having promulgated the new constitution in such a way as not to injure democracy or the representative system, the administration has democracy as the basis for the new program," the foreign minister said.

(The new constitution provided for a two-house legislature but reserved to the president broad power to initiate and guide legislation. It was placed in effect immediately, to be passed upon in a plebiscite to be held at the discretion of the chief executive.)

It was reliably learned that Italian and German envoys to Brazil had made overtures to gain Brazilian adherence to the Italian-German-Japanese anti-communist pact but had been turned down.

Chicago Police Hunt Owner of Meat Market

Chicago — (U) — Missing since Tuesday under circumstances which puzzled his family and police, Wilson W. Davis, 24, son of a retired Wisconsin banker, was sought by investigators today.

Davis, owner of a north side meat market, left his home Tuesday morning in his truck. His wife, Harriet, 22, told police he had taken $300 with him to pay some bills.

Police said he was last seen at the Illinois commission house where he made a purchase and left. His truck was found parked near the commission house Wednesday.

Investigators said two suspicious men loitered near his truck while Davis was making his purchase. No one saw him when he returned to the truck, however.

Police said the missing man's father, Ruford Davis, Pontiana, Wis., retired vice president of the Walworth State bank, Walworth, Wis., was expected to come to Chicago to aid in the search for his son.

Farmers Mystified by Shooting of Livestock

Elkhorn — (U) — Farmers of the Elkhorn vicinity were seeking an explanation today of the losses by shooting of several heads of livestock.

Two hogs on the John McGee farm were killed with shotguns. A colt owned by Granville Olson was found shot to death. Then McGee found a mule so badly wounded it had to be destroyed yesterday.

Only Rearguard Actions
Being Fought During Withdrawal

Shanghai — (U) — China's Shanghai army, about 400,000 strong, fell back today toward the Chinese "Hindenburg line" more than 50 miles to the west.

Japanese troops, numbering 200,000, forced Chinese from towns and trenches in the Shanghai area. The Chinese fought only rearguard actions as they withdrew toward the line of trenches and pillboxes.

Changshu, Wuxi and Suzhou, through Soochow, Wuxi and Kaishan, and protecting Nanking. Nippon's war planes ranged into the interior as the troops advanced. One flight bombed the American church mission hospital at Wushu, 80 miles west of Nanking, killing two Chinese staff members. Five Americans escaped injury.

Refuse Second Invitation
(The Japanese government in Tokyo today refused a second invitation to participate in proceedings of the Brussels conference on the Far Eastern war.)

With the fall of Shanghai to Japanese, officials of the Shanghai municipal council began a widespread cleanup of Anti-Japanese societies operating in the international settlement.

Stirling Fessenden, American secretary-general of the council, said he did not believe Japanese would interfere with the International group's functions and added that there was little friction between the council and the Japanese.

Fessenden added that if Japan should declare war, Shanghai might become the subject of international discussion. Yesterday General Iwane Matsui, commander of the Japanese army at Shanghai, said "we might have to take action" against "numbers of communists" in the international settlement.

Canals, canals and lakes slice the terrain. Japanese must cross before reaching the new Chinese lines. The

Roosevelt Won't Drop Membership In Press Society

Washington — (U) — President Roosevelt indicated today he intends to retain his honorary membership in the American Press society.

The Washington Newspaper Guild last night asked him to reconsider his acceptance of membership, asserting in a resolution that the society was regarded by the guild as an "employer-dominated" organization.

Asked about the resolution at his press conference today, the president said the constitution of the society looked pretty good to him.

He read the following excerpt from the constitution:

"This society is dedicated to the belief that the practice of journalism is an honorable profession bearing the nature of a public trust, the integrity and detachment of which are essential to free government and to preservation of the liberties of the masses and of minorities."

Federal Housing Body Acts to Help Private Capital

Increases Maximum Dividends Under Jurisdiction From 6 to 8 Pct.

Washington — (U) — The federal housing administration held out the prospect of larger earnings today to induce private capital to build thousands of new homes.

The FHA, first agency to respond to the efforts of President Roosevelt to stimulate private construction, increased from 6 to 8 per cent the maximum dividends permitted corporations which get federal insurance on mortgages financing large-scale projects.

Stewart McDonald, FHA administrator, said he believed this and other changes now decided on would result in "millions of dollars worth of new construction."

Reduction of labor costs in the building field, another subject of interest to the agency, was received by Mr. Roosevelt's new housing committee, which was given by the president of the American Federation of Labor. He said he doubted the workability of a proposal that building workers accept lower hourly rates in exchange for a prospect of steadier employment.

Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.) and others studied proposals meanwhile for creation of a national mortgage bank to facilitate the movement of private capital into communities where it is needed.

Consideration also was given to suggestions for reducing from 20 to 10 per cent the minimum down payment on an individual home before its mortgage will be insured by the FHA.

Five Sentenced Under U. S. Securities Act

Detroit — (U) — Five officers and stockholders of R. Cummings and Company, Battle Creek, Mich., distillery, were sentenced by Federal Judge Arthur F. Lederle today to terms ranging from two to five years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, and fined $10,000 each.

They were convicted several weeks ago of violating the federal securities act and the mail fraud act.

The five sentenced are: Edward A. Attix, Detroit attorney and president of the company, five years; Harry H. Landay, vice president and general manager, five years; Frank R. Lane, secretary-treasurer, four years; Leonard E. Brown, former vice president, three years; and Samuel LaFata, stockholder, two years.

BRUSSELS SPURNED Nine-Power Group Un- likely to Send New Plea to Tokio

Brussels — (U) — An authoritative Japanese source declared today the United States, acting for itself, still had "a ticket of entry" to discuss Far Eastern peace with Japan, despite Tokio's refusal of the Brussels conference mediation appeal.

This source said the United States ambassador to Japan, Joseph C. Grew, could always approach the Japanese foreign office to discuss the Chinese-Japanese conflict from the standpoint of heavy American interests involved.

The statement bore out in a general way the attitude Japan disclosed before opening of the conference here, called under the nine power pact guaranteeing China's territorial integrity.

The Japanese view was that activities of Ambassador Grew and Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson at Nanking, starting from the standpoint of American interests and entirely divorced from the Brussels conference or the League of Nations, might develop ways and means towards peace.

Oppose New Appeal Basing their replies on press sum- maries of Japan's reply rejecting a second invitation to the Brussels conference, the various delegations said they saw no justification for addressing a new conference appeal to Japan.

They interpreted these summaries generally to mean Japan wanted the conference to recommence direct negotiations between China and Japan, a plan which Premier Benito Mussolini's Italian representative here has urged.

If the text of the Japanese reply, which has not yet been officially received here, clearly excludes all possibility of conciliation within the framework of the nine-power treaty, conference leaders said they planned to draw up a historical statement of the situation and probably an agenda for the second stage of the conference.

Await Instructions
After a suitable period of adjournment, perhaps a week during which the delegations would receive instructions from home governments, the conference would consider positive methods of dealing with the conflict.

Views expressed in official conference circles were that this should avoid taking the form of "quarantining" or boycotting Japan, but should extend the chief help to China, particularly in the form of supplies and financial credits.

A proposal by China's Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo for "moral, diplomatic and economic restraint" of aggression excited comment today among the peace conferees.

Some diplomatic quarters believed Dr. Koo's suggestion—made in an Armistice day broadcast to the United States—might have been inspired inasmuch as it followed a lengthy talk with the chief delegates of the United States, Britain and France.

Ready to Discuss Peace
The Chinese delegation, headed by Dr. Koo, announced only that the Chinese had assured Ambassador-at-Large Norman H. Davis, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and

Little Action Is Seen at Start of Special Session

Farm Legislation Won't Be Ready for Introduction Monday

Washington—(AP)—Predictions of a slow beginning for the special session of congress came today from Democratic leaders, who nevertheless pledged themselves to expedite the Roosevelt program.

Speaker Bankhead said he believed it inevitable that the house would have to "jockey along a few days at a time" because farm legislation will not be ready when the session starts on Monday.

Both Bankhead and Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic floor leader, said they would try to enact as many as possible of the president's five recommendations before the regular session meets in January.

They mentioned crop control, government reorganization, regional planning, and wage-hour standards. It appeared that the fifth administrative proposal—anti-trust law revision—might hold over.

Will Send Message

Because none of these subjects is entirely new, President Roosevelt will send his message to congress next week instead of delivering it in person.

Several returning congressmen, grumbling because major bills still were incomplete, said they might well have stayed home a while longer.

Although senate and house agreed last summer that farm legislation should top the legislative slate, neither agriculture committee has approached a final decision on methods of providing price stability and crop control.

A source of possible conflict between the two chambers already has appeared. The senate committee seems to be leaning toward compulsory farm control, members said, and the house committee toward voluntary regulation.

Financing Problem

Another big problem, Senator Barkley told reporters yesterday, is that of financing the program.

The house agriculture committee took a long look yesterday at agriculture department estimates that the farm bill will require $275,000,000 in new funds for benefit payments—$100,000,000 each for wheat and cotton and $75,000,000 for corn.

That would put the projected farm program on a $825,000,000 basis, because the present soil conservation payments total $440,000,000 a year and congress makes about $110,000,000 in customs receipts available for loans.

The president has insisted that additional outlays for farmers must come from new revenue provided by congress.

Although two government reorganization measures are on the house calendar, Bankhead said they might not be allowed to precede debate on the farm bill. An anti-lynching bill is ready for the senate, but Barkley said it too would have to await crop control enactment.

Post, Auxiliary Combine Gaiety and Reverence at Annual Armistice Party

BY DON ANDERSON

Music and merriment and miniature hats mingled with thoughtful memories of a great war, its heroes and its ending, as more than 200 members of the Oney Johnston post of the American Legion and the auxiliary held their annual Armistice day celebration last night at Rainbow Gardens.

Good food, songs, well-presented speeches, dancing and fun-making made up a pleasant evening for the veterans and the ladies at the party which was planned by Charles Pond and George Limpert.

Alderman Gustave Keller, the principal speaker, told the legionnaires and auxiliary members that "it was natural for humanity to be happy over the cessation of the war" and that it was proper that the veterans "keep alive that great adventure."

"That war was fought to end war," Keller said, "but it is tragic that the dream of world peace did not come true. The present plight of the world is a sad commentary on the integrity of the statesmen of Europe."

With a million or more men and a half-million women, the legion and

Urges Utilities to Use Advertising to Answer Criticisms

Milwaukee—(AP)—Frank R. Innes, western editor of the Electrical World, urged the electric utilities to use advertising to counteract unfavorable publicity in an address prepared for delivery today to the Wisconsin Utilities association convention.

"There has been instilled in the public mind a fairly general conviction that by and large the utility industry is crooked and that the chastelement it is receiving today from the hands of radical government is no more than deserved," he said.

The reason that this conviction always definitely colors the public mind is that the publicity instilling it has never had any effective antidote. The utilities have never used publicity in their own favor to counteract the publicity directed against them."

G. V. Rork, Eau Claire, vice president of the Northern States Power company, told the convention yesterday that "any attempt by experts to produce plans for immediate electrification of all farms in Wisconsin without careful thought and study is preposterous."

He declared that "for over a decade utilities have not only endeavored to better serve the farmer at lower rates, but they have also endeavored to produce efficient and economical appliances, enabling the farmer to convert kilowatt hours into farmhands."

Hobo King Voices Plea For Peace Preservation

Milwaukee—(AP)—Americans should be as "smart as bananas" to save this country from war, Jeff Davis, self-styled "King of Hoboes," told a building trades council meeting last night in an Armistice plea for peace.

"Bananas stick together," Davis said, "and when one leaves the bunch all the rest know he's going to get skinned. Let's be as smart as bananas and stay bunched to keep peace here regardless of the rest of the world."

Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos that China was still willing to discuss peace, even in event of Japanese refusal of the conference's latest overture.

One prominent statesman participating in the conference said nothing in the way of "radical" action was planned at present by the 19 conferring governments. He emphatically denied reports that a joint naval demonstration in the Far East was under consideration.

The suggestion of Dr. Koo was for restraint by "peace-loving nations" but without recourse to force.

The conference was in adjournment until tomorrow, pending formal receipt of the reply to the second overture toward Tokyo.

Tokio—(AP)—Japan formally refused today a second invitation to participate in the Brussels conference on the Far Eastern war.

The Imperial government's note declared, however, that Japan "would be glad if the powers should contribute to the stabilization of eastern Asia in a manner consonant with the realities of the situation."

In a note handed to Belgian Ambassador Baron Albert de Bassompierre, the Japanese government repeated the argument that Japanese military operations in China were in self defense and asserted that the conflict "lies outside" the scope of the nine-power treaty.

Japan is a signatory of the nine-power pact which guarantees the territorial integrity of China and under which the Brussels conference was called.

Street Cars Nearly Eliminated in State as Green Bay Turns to Buses

Green Bay—(AP)—When Green Bay officially ushers out its 43-year-old street railway system Wednesday, Nov. 17, and replaces its 12 trolleys with 12 new, modern buses, the transfer will be significant of the near-demise of the street car in Wisconsin, exclusive of the Milwaukee area.

The move will leave Wausau the only state city still dependent principally on a rail system for transportation. A. F. Herwig, Milwaukee, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Utilities association, said today.

Iron wheels still roll on rails in Racine and LaCrosse, Herwig said, but only as fragmentary supplements to buses, which now supply nearly 80 per cent of the service.

Major communities which have abandoned street railways entirely in favor of buses or trolley buses in recent years are listed in the 1936 statistical report of the Wisconsin utilities association as follows:

Plan Celebration

Janesville, Ashland, Beloit, Eau Claire, Oshkosh, Appleton, Sheboygan, Marinette, Kenosha, Madison, and Superior.

Officials of Green Bay's utility, the Wisconsin Public Service Corporation, have secured the cooperation of city officers in planning a civic celebration of next week's change from street cars to buses.

A parade, addresses by Mayor John S. Farrell, a military ceremony of discharge for the old street cars on Wednesday, and free rides for all citizens on the new buses Thursday mark highlights of the program.

An airline company according to Fred Hatch, official of the Green Bay utility, will furnish 12 hostesses to ride the buses and minister to the added comfort of the passengers during the exhibition day.

General Trend

Green Bay's switch to the rubber-wheeled rolling stock, Herwig commented today, marks an almost universal acceptance by Wisconsin traction utilities of the fact that buses or trolley buses have superseded street cars both in economy of operation and in the public fancy.

This assertion, he said, did not include Milwaukee, where movement of large masses of people at peak hours still can be effected best by street cars. The trend in Milwaukee, Herwig said, is to rely on street cars to tour the main arteries and to use buses on cross-town lines and feeder routes to the outskirts.

Earnings Inadequate

No state electric company has made an adequate return on its investment in the last 10 years, Herwig stated.

"Most of them haven't paid a cent to common stockholders in seven years, despite all the talk you hear of earnings," the executive secretary said.

"In Green Bay it got so bad that the Wisconsin Public Service Corporation tried to sell its plant and works to the city a few years ago for the sum of $1—and had the offer refused."

Herwig said utility operators in Wisconsin have turned rapidly from street cars to buses on their lines because of the lesser cost of upkeep and equipment, the greater flexibility of lines, and the psychological effect upon the public, which now is accustomed to riding on rubber tires in its automobiles.

Badger Farmer Is Better Off This Year Than in 1936

Receives $299,064,000 For Products First 9 Months of 1937

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—Badger farmers are somewhat better off financially this fall than they were last, according to figures just released by the department of agriculture.

For the first nine months of this year, Wisconsin farmers are estimated to have received $244,064,000 from sales of principal farm products and from government payments. For the corresponding period in 1936 they are reported to have received $216,952,000. In the corresponding period in 1935 they received $184,510,000 according to the report.

Farm income, including government payments, in September, 1937, fell below the September, 1936, figure, however. For September 1937, it is reported at $26,262,000, compared with $27,799,000 in September last year.

Government payments to Wisconsin farmers in the first nine months of this year were far greater than in the corresponding period last year—$10,469,000 compared with $2,410,000. For the month of September, Badger farmers received $322,000 from the federal government compared with $42,000 in September, 1936.

From the sale of livestock and livestock products in the first nine months of 1937, Wisconsin farmers received $205,354,000. In the corresponding period last year they received only $189,598,000.

Earnings from crop sales were similarly high for Wisconsin. In the 9-months period this year the income stood at $28,241,000 compared with $24,944,000 last year. It was slightly over $15,000,000 in 1935 and over $18,000,000 in 1934, according to the department of agriculture.

Wisconsin Intensifies Campaign to Advertise Dairy Industry in World

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—With state farm leaders painting alarming pictures of the rise of a competitive dairy industry in the south, Wisconsin is preparing to intensify its campaign to advertise its greatest single industry, dairying, to the whole civilized world.

Two years ago the state government took a lesson from unsuccessful merchants and business men and voted an appropriation of $50,000 annually to advertise the butter, milk and cheese of which the state is so proud. A division of dairy promotion was established within the department of agriculture which was to educate the nation and the world to think of Wisconsin as the place where dairy products come from, and to establish consumer preference for those products throughout the United States.

Today, although Wisconsin with 10 per cent of the nation's milk production and 57 per cent of the United States cheese supply still maintains a comfortable lead in the American dairy business, leaders of dairy farmers organizations are alarmed at what they call the threat of a rising dairying industry in the southern states.

Increase Appropriation

Recently Governor LaFollette and a group of these leaders persuaded the state legislature to increase the dairy promotion to $75,000 annually, and to establish an auxiliary promotion department, the Wisconsin Agricultural authority, a private corporation directed by farmers which was given $150,000 to spend on selling Wisconsin, its products, resources and its people to the nation and to the world.

Administration authors of the act described the WAA as a "traveling salesman for Wisconsin dairy products." The act creating the division won the support of most of the state's important farm groups, leaders of which members of the board of directors of the corporation, will shortly outline its program for the next year.

According to Governor LaFollette's advisors the WAA will promote a two point program. There will be an effort made to arrange a high quality dairy standards program within the state, while the WAA will send ambassadors representing the state and its dairy industry all over the United States, and to foreign nations, in order to still further expand markets for Wisconsin's dairy products.

Wisconsin's government is convinced of the value of advertising, especially since the first biennium of its promotion program coincided with an increase in milk production income of $57,000,000.

The state through its publicity division, according to Wilbur G. Carlson, director, advertises its dairy products in national magazines, through nation-wide publicity stunts metropolitan newspapers, the distribution of cheese samples everywhere, through rectorized signs on the principal highways of the nation, the exhibition of mammoth one or two ton cheeses at national shows and fairs, the distribution of educational booklets to thousands of school children, and sundry other means.

Two of the most effective publicity schemes plotted by Carlson were the distribution of cheese valentines to notables all over the western hemisphere, and "The Battle of the Cornstalks" at the Iowa statehouse this year.

The idea of using cheese valentines as appropriate gifts from the leading dairy state of the country was suggested by Winnebago, Inc., a conservation group. Valentines were sent air mail from the governor's office to the heads of all the South American and Central American republics, all American state governors, American insular possession heads, and the governor general of Canada. The resulting publicity, and the correspondence which this program evoked make the agriculture department's files a paradise for stamp collectors, says Carlson.

In the famed "Battle of the Cornstalks", Wisconsin, unable to match Iowa's cornstalks in a friendly contest engineered by Governor LaFollette and Governor Nelson G. Kraschel of Iowa, turned defeat into victory by entering a truck load of Wisconsin's best cheese, butter, fish and game, which pushed off the battle scene Iowa's tall corn cobs.

Madagascar will supply machinery to aid planters in producing better coffee.

Drive to Avert Depression on, Lawrence Says

President and Business Getting Together on Program

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—The drive to avert a major depression and to instill confidence in American business is proceeding with almost sensational pace. Notwithstanding the fact that all the moves in the picture are not visible to the naked eye, the truth is that the administration led by the president and aided by every one of his principal advisers and executives is definitely striving to reverse the tide of deflation. Business men who conferred several hours with the president on Wednesday expressed themselves afterwards as very much cheered by Mr. Roosevelt's attitude. They are deeply gratified, of course by Secretary Morgenthau's speech, but the whole situation has taken on a better atmosphere in the last few days.

Piecing together what has happened, the situation looks about like this:

1. The administration and the utilities are engaged in a series of peace-making maneuvers designed to set in motion a spending program of $1,200,000,000 a year. The effect of this on electrical industries, and upon raw material producers who supply the ingredients of utility construction is expected to be quite considerable, though unhappily it will be several months before loans can be floated and blueprints approved.

2. The administration is soft-pedaling the "seven TVA" idea and flatly declaring against any more PWA loans. This is an indirect but nevertheless significant answer to the cry of the utilities that the government is competing with them and lending public funds to stir up competition through municipal ownership.

3. The administration is ready to get behind an enormous building drive such as this country has never before witnessed. It means that the federal housing corporation machinery will be used to extend the plan whereby the banks and the government have cooperated in floating mortgage loans. Government officials think they can bring down the cost of insuring the loans, and this is equivalent to a reduction in the cost of floating the loans because the citizen, in getting an FHA loan, finds interest and finance charges lumped together.

4. The administration is giving thought to the problem of reducing construction costs. This can be done perhaps by putting workers in the building trades on an annual wage system. Something of this sort has been discussed by President Roosevelt and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. The conversations are significant of the president's recognition that labor costs cannot keep on going up if construction is to be encouraged.

5. The administration has given explicit assurances with reference to a balanced budgetary program. Business wants a balanced budget as soon as practicable, but up to now there has been no earnest effort in that direction.

6. The administration has sent word to congressional leaders that constructive tax revision must be the order of the day. By this is meant no reduction in total tax revenues, but a distribution of rates that does not interfere with business incentive or expansion or job creation.

Taken all in all, it may well be said that the administration is moving on all fronts. So determined is the president represented as being in his talks with callers that one wonders whether, at the time Mr. Roosevelt delivered his fireside chat a few weeks ago, he was familiar with the extent to which business recession had set in. All the plans being discussed now will take some time to put into effect, but the vital and important fact is the present psychology of encouragement to business so that unnecessary retrenchment and panic-slashing of payrolls and expenses will not take place. Some evidence that, even where volume and profits were continuing, business men without rhyme or reason began to cut budgets has come in here. Justification for such action was found, of course, in the fears of administration policy. Nowadays, with the one-man control of governmental affairs, it is natural that business shall watch for presidential action. The markets have gone up when Mr. Roosevelt has said or done something encouraging.

Most everybody here in the administration agrees now that there has been a lag in business and that pyramiding prices due to various causes have halted the progress of the economic machine. Congress, of course is still pretty political-minded, and next week we shall hear speeches from one of the spokesmen saying there isn't any depression at all and speeches from other spokesmen predicting dire calamity.

The man with the ball—to use a football phrase—is in the White House. Congress will be subservient to his desires because business and government will be cooperating in the next few weeks as never before under the present administration. It is not a case of mutual affection by any means, but common interest intensified by dire necessity. For while there are some persons who still take a casual attitude toward the events of the moment, it will be recorded some day that the autumn of 1937 was a turning point in economic history and that it marked either the beginning of an era of peace between government and business in which the principle of individual initiative and private capital was saved from destruction. These are truly historic and momentous days, the significance of which will be unfolded over the next six to eight months of economic crisis and transition.

Queer Precedents are Accumulating Rapidly

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Suppose someone on the order of Huey Long became president, with a majority in congress ready to ratify any crazy idea of his in return for some personal graft and some mock jobs for their good-for-nothing relatives.

The president would have a lot of press agents at work for him, pounding away on the notion, advanced by the New Deal press agents, that the election returns were a blank check mandate and that the party majority in congress had no right to turn down any proposal sent over from the White House, no matter what. That would relieve them of all responsibility, and encourage by precedent, they would demand a cut on all the insurance and bonding business pledged by people and big corporations desiring to stand in with the government and a kick-back on liquor and radio permits and a percentage on all public orders for school books, office supplies, building materials, paving contracts and just everything.

They would stick their unsuccessful brother-in-law and their wives onto the payrolls of private companies for doing nothing or merely going through the motions of doing something, and this would become notorious in the land, but the president and the majority in congress would just laugh at the shrill protests of the minority that all this was dishonest and sinful.

Encouraged by precedent, they would refuse to expose the details of the graft, and the administration press agent, taking a cue from the pioneers in this line of justification under cover of the sacred mandate from the majority, would say that it was petty and reactionary to mention such trifling imperfections in the execution of great, fundamental reforms intended to make every man a king. A few would try to refuse the demands.

A few scrappy individuals in private business would try to refuse the demands of the majority statesmen for jobs for their relatives and try to place their insurance and trading business with their old and trusted agents. But after a while they would find their own customers drifting off to deal with firms enjoying the approval of the administration and if they still resisted would find their taxes raised arbitrarily. Firms and individuals would be jerked into court under indictments charging violation of the income tax, also with the sanction of the very distinguished precedent, and after a while, all but a few stubborn die-hards would be going around to call on some pal of the president—someone with no particular office in the administration, but just a confidential access to the White House—to see if the trouble couldn't be straightened out. So the confidential pal would say, "Why sure; it was silly to have trouble, because, after all, it was cheaper by far to go along with the boys in their great patriotic plan than to pay lawyers and accountants to battle away in the courts. And the loss of business and the constant state of upsetment were certainly too great a price to pay for mere stubbornness. So why not be reasonable and toss that insurance and bonding business over to the right party, who was, after all, a great kid if you got to know him?"

Louisiana Purchase Is a Case in Point

Well, all right, and then what about the income tax indictments? Oh, well, on second thought they seem to have been the result of over-zealousness by an ambitious young lawyer in the treasury, out to make a name for himself, and purely technical in character. And, anyway, didn't you ever hear of the Louisiana purchase? Not the first one, but the second one. A very important precedent—the second Louisiana purchase.

Of course, there would be a few obstreperous anti-administration statesmen in congress who would want to sink a pick into the crust on the scandal and let out some of the fumes, but, again, according to precedent, the majority, pursuant to the second mandate, would refuse to let them have the floor unless they first agreed not to raise questions intended to embarrass the administration and obstruct the great humanitarian reform.

Strange precedents are accumulating rapidly, and when, finally, the proposition is established that a popular majority constitutes a mandate superseding the responsibility and duty of congress, everything will be all set for the man in the armored car.

England Free of Labor Disputes, Babson Declares

High Degree of Unionization Responsible for Improvement, He Believes

BY ROGER BABSON
Boston, Mass.—England is free of much of the labor unrest which we are experiencing. Labor troubles have decreased drastically in recent years. From a peak in 1926, the annual number of workers involved in disputes has dropped 85 per cent. Not only the return of prosperity, but the high degree of unionization, are responsible for this improvement. Total membership in trade unions in England at present is 5,400,000, or nearly one-half of all male industrial workers. Our own figures are roughly 7,000,000 union members. This is about one-fourth of our male industrial workers.

Yet, surprisingly enough, union interest in England seems to be on the wane. Labor leaders over there are now trying desperately to stage a "demonstration" as they call it. They recently have had a hard time in getting even small audiences. When I asked one of the leaders the reason for this difficulty, he said: "Some years ago when labor was fighting for recognition, this hall would be many times over-flowed when I called a meeting. Now, when everyone is a member of some labor union and when collective bargaining is universal, the wage workers have lost interest in union activities."

New Slant
This is typical of what I heard everywhere in England. Industrialists over there believe that American employers are foolish to fight labor in its attempts to organize and bargain. A manufacturer said to me: "A boiler explodes only when the safety valve is tied down. Labor is well employed wherever I go. Unemployment has been cut in half since the crisis. New buildings are going up everywhere. Total construction is double the level of five years ago."

Britain's share of total world trade has edged-up from 26 per cent in 1931 to 31 per cent at present. Retail trade is very active. Trains and busses are crowded with people. Holidaying is even more popular than it is here. Retail prices and the cost of living have been held down remarkably well. But wages and the standard of living are both much below our own. Intelligent and skilled women workers are satisfied with ten dollars per week!

I spent several days in Gloucester, England because it is the city from which my birthplace—Gloucester, Massachusetts—took its name. It was once the capital of England where parliament met. The first labor legislation ever enacted was written in that city in the year 1250. This first labor law was to prevent workers from one county coming into another and "spoiling the demand for labor thereby reducing wages."

Of course, 700 years ago all English labor was agricultural. Some sections would have much better crops than others. To "protect" the laborers of each county, this law was passed. It was the early forerunner of the regulatory legislation with which we are wrestling today.

Incidentally, while looking up this first labor "act," I came across a law whereby anyone found "cutting his initials" or otherwise defacing a bridge, building, statue, or fence, was exiled for life. This law was backed by labor because it reduced the supply! For centuries, hundreds of different experiments and programs have been tried over there and, like the above, later repealed. The worker's only real protection—whether he be German, British, Canadian, or American—lies in greater production and lower prices.

A study of history shows that England has had ten violent "New Deal" periods. There is nothing in the Roosevelt program of today which has not been tried in England, France, and Germany. Some of this legislation—such as stock exchange regulation and old age unemployment insurance—has stuck; but all previous attempts to regulate prices and wages have failed and been repealed.

Today, parliament is interested in increasing the birth rate, improving the health of workers, eliminating slums, and reducing the cost of living. I repeat, all our New Deal legislation—which gives Wall street such jitters—is "old stuff" to English and continental investors. They do not fear it. Even labor leaders are skeptical of it as an aid to them.

These leaders say: "The working people of America have secured a much higher standard of living without restrictions and legislation. They are foolish to get tied down by labor unions and let the inefficient workers set the pay standards for the entire group." The average weekly income of workers of the United States is within two per cent of the high of 1929 while the cost of living is from 12 to 15 per cent less.

This does not mean that our workers are saving this amount of money, but rather that they are getting this proportion more in food, clothing, shelter, education, and comforts. The same figures also apply substantially to England although her pay scales and standard of living are considerably under our wage and living standards.

Yes, America has a motor vehicle to every five persons while England has one car to every twenty individuals; and we have an electric refrigerator to every three families in comparison with one to every twenty British families. Let me emphasize that the manufacturers and big employers of England and Europe are all for Roosevelt and his experiments.

They believe that our New Deal will so increase manufacturing costs in America that it will be easier for their goods to jump our tariff walls and undersell our products in our markets!

KOALAS TO BE SAVED
Australia is to save the koala, the quaint animal resembling a teddy bear, according to reports received by the Koala Club of Sydney which has been raising funds for the purpose. The tiny animals, which faced extinction, will be aided in their migrations, so necessary to obtain the proper food in different parts of the country. Civilization having stopped their travels, the koalas will be transported by motor trucks.

Fewer Children Of School Age in County This Year

Report of Superintendent Shows Number Decreased 297

A decrease of 297 in the number of children of school age was found in the county this year, the annual report of Henry J. Van Straten, Outagamie county superintendent of schools, submitted to the county board this week, shows. The total this year is 10,566 as compared to 10,863 last year. Children between the ages of 4 and 20 are included.

The state and common school fund income is apportioned in accordance with the figures. Each school district receives 30 cents per child which item will more than pay for the repair of books in the school library, the report revealed. The largest school population in the county is found in the town of Grand Chute where 1,040 are recorded. The smallest number is 146 in the town of Liberty.

There are 4,575 enrolled in the county schools, 113 less than were enrolled in 1936. This decrease is not significant unless it continues from year to year, the report read.

The rural school enrolment decreased by 111 while the state graded school enrolment decreased 63. The high schools showed an increase of 63.

The consolidated income of the 134 school districts was $118,880.24 on June 30, 1936 and $105,074.23 on June 30, 1937. Local taxes in the school districts amounted to $140,757.32 which was an increase of $7,027.45.

During the year school board members received $6,162.27. The largest item in disbursements was salaries which amounted to $166,065.51 out of a total expenditure of $333,290.61.

Music instruction under a special teacher was carried out in five village and ten rural schools. Full-time teachers were employed at Seymour and Hortonville.

Turkey Prices Should Parallel Last Year's

Unless there are unexpected changes in the market, prices on turkey will be about the same as last year and perhaps lower, Appleton butchers indicated yesterday. Rumors that the price would be as high as 40 cents are untrue, they stated.

Butchers reported that the cost should be between 28 and 35 cents a pound for America's standard Thanksgiving dinner. Last year the average price was 32 cents. Turkeys are plentiful this year, it was reported.

Births exceeded death by 98,000 in Germany in the first three months of 1937.

THE PRESIDENT THINKS OF BUILDING

Launching a new scheme to stimulate private building and construction work, both of homes and plants, could be done very easily.

If you wish to obtain movement in any particular field of endeavor the first step is to remove the ties that bind and the obstructions that burden.

There is so much room for home building in America, what with cities spread all over a smiling countryside, that the only incentive needed is a good job by the prospective builder with a company that is not so pestered and kicked by governmental nabobs that the job will probably be lost. That is about all there is to that part of it.

But further. There is hardly a plant of any consequence in America that is not long over-due for attention, an addition, an overhauling or new and modern machinery.

Yet you cannot get that horse off the ground while the government hamstringing it by making it divert its funds in unusual channels.

The contest as the Post-Crescent indicated when the surplus profits tax was first proposed is between the government in its effort to get this money to pay high salaries to an extensive political machine, and industry that would use this money for labor and materials in keeping abreast of the times.

Heretofore the President has called upon Mr. Farley and all his troop of well-paid flatterers and satellites, and they have ganged up on industry.

Now with all of them sitting on industry's heaving chest and it no longer able to carry the load they delightfully exclaim like a child playing hobbyhorse, "Come on, let's run some more."

TAVERN CONDITIONS

Brewers' and tavernkeepers' associations at Milwaukee are supporting the crusade of the Ministers' Association to improve tavern conditions.

It is safe to say that had such support been given in good faith and actively before the war we never would have had prohibition.

It is just as safe to say that the majority of tavernkeepers and brewers are taking this step because they believe the ministers are right and not merely for the sake of expediency.

The brewer or tavernkeeper who thinks that constant breaches of the law in taverns is popular with the public is rare but his power is extensive for some curious and befuddled reason that the public constantly believes is related to unlawful use of money.

He sometimes is known to control councils to such an extent that licenses are not revoked even for taverns guilty of woeful misconduct.

With the rest of the state, as with Milwaukee, the council is responsible, and it alone, for dank, rank taverns pock-marked with vice and corruption.

When a council will quickly revoke licenses in the face of good evidence of wrongdoing the taverns of that town will not invite the flood of destruction that is bound to come from the people in accumulation of their reactions to constant misbehavior.

BIG BUSINESS

When an industry lifts itself into the five billion dollar classification the persons who manage it, who earn their bread and butter in it or who share in the profits it produces are entitled to feel more than a little bit proud about the fact.

The Nation's tourist industry is expected to crowd the five billion dollar mark, and may exceed it, this year.

In the industry, either directly or indirectly, every American is a shareholder.

It is a highly competitive business. Mississippi bids against Montana, Washington State against Washington, D. C., Wisconsin against Wyoming, for a share of the tourist's dollar.

As big business, there is precedent for its regulation. A bill to authorize the setting up of a national travel commission is to be introduced in the Congress during the next session.

Those who will sponsor the bill believe the commission should include representation from the State, Commerce and Interior departments, as well as from the several States and from the industries engaged in the promotion of travel.

There will be objections to the proposed measure, some of them well taken. It will be charged that a national commission of the kind to be proposed will further centralize authority in Washington and may contravene States' rights.

These are matters for the Congress to decide.

The average citizen who has a stake in the tourist industry is likely to feel, however, that some kind of centralized control of a great and growing business will benefit him, will help to limit useless duplication of effort and will serve to smooth the path of the person who has tourist dollars to spend.

MICHIGAN HANGS HER HEAD

Michigan faces a great perplexity, more bothersome in some ways than CIO and sitdown strikes.

It has found to its horror that some young men on its university football squad have been assisted to jobs by graduates so they might sustain themselves, secure an education and at the same time try to shine for Alma Mater on an athletic field.

Such a charge ought to rate a grand jury and the personal attention of the attorney general.

The first thing we know America will be littered by fellows with college educations who, according to their families' bankrolls, should be cleaning streets or hanging around the docks looking for a casual job. It was bad enough to see England lose a king who probably became tired to insomnia with fuss and feathers but here is a worse threat, the unshaved hoi polloi hankering after educations and actually being assisted by graduates.

To get down to cases it is said the evidence establishes that one of these young men had secured a job at Ann Arbor whereby at the end of the week he actually received $8.00. In addition to his studies and his football practice he was supposed to show up at the store and do some work. If he found the day too short to provide him with sleep and a place for all his other activities the storekeeper went a bit soft with him and the graduates made good any loss.

Michigan can go as scarlet as a college pennant but it can never eradicate the petty little schemes devised by 50,000 graduates to help young men onward whom they believe will be useful to the reputation of the university on the gridiron. Where is the Bill of Rights when some stoop-shouldered introvert can receive assistance but a brawny, barrel-chested man must not upon pain of state wide disgrace?

Could anything indicate more clearly to what a ridiculous extent colleges have gone to maintain a claimed purity in athletics that exists no more in spirit than it does in fact?

The idea that supports these rules is based upon a medieval class distinction whatever may have been in the minds of its formulators. The plowboy must remain a plowboy unless his father raises the dough to send him through the portals of education. If anyone turns a kindly hand, gives a valuable suggestion or goes out of his way to tip the youth off to his maintenance without the necessity of a bank holdup one would think the Japs were at the gate and America was about to be destroyed.

College athletics will probably totter along in this same old silly fashion, schools will be reprimanded and professors who should be wearing lace undies will utter exclamations upon the wickedness of everything in general. But if the boys who produce $100,000 games were given something like one per cent of the receipts, enough to buy ham and eggs and a cup of java, and everything done out in the open, just where, exactly, would the disaster arise? What filthy disgrace attaches to the young man who makes a living by the clean course of athletic contest but doesn't exist with the lounge lizard whose income is procured solely by gun-power?

Opinions Of Others

SPEAKING SOME SENSE

To say that Herbert Hoover made a better speech the other night than Alfred M. Landon made recently is faint praise. It was a very much better speech. And the best parts of it were those in which Mr. Hoover recognized what is wrong with the Republican party.

Viewing the New Deal with alarm is old stuff, whether it is Mr. Hoover talking about "creeping collectivism" or Mr. Landon about "one-man government." What the country wants to know is whether the Republican can acknowledge and correct their own faults. Mr. Hoover, in addition to disclaiming personal ambition for another nomination, expounded a doctrine his party needs to hear.

"If the Republican party has not learned the lesson that it must produce principles and programs, besides being against and joy-riding on mistakes," he said, "it has not read history."

And he added that Republican principles and program must meet the "yearnings of the people today for a way out and forward."

Correct! Unless the Republican party offers a way forward it will remain the feeble and ineffective thing it has been since 1932. The Republican party, or without it, the people are going forward. They are determined to reach the objectives promised by the New Deal. It may be true, as Mr. Hoover says, that the New Deal's road toward those objectives "badly needs repaving with practical methods." But the people are not likely to hire a Republican paying crew without most definite assurance that its intention is to mend the road, not detour traffic back into the old reactionary mid-hole.

So it's a case for proving. But we will say this—If the Mr. Hoover sets forth should be achieved by a revived and renovated Republican party, nothing could be better for the country. For this is a two-party government, and a powerful opposition is vital to its successful operation.—New York World Telegram.

TO A SOLDIER OF MISFORTUNE
(Robert Benjamin Young)

The years are long since you have lain,
Fighting the valiant fight,
Having a daily bout with pain,
Dreading the lonely night.
I have complained about my life...
Often I have disclaimed
The feeble joys, the daily strife—
But you have not complained!

You are two men, the body worn
Warring against disease,
And the brave spirit, with unshorn
Pinions that rise with ease
Above the chains that hold you fast,
Into the farthest blue!
The mold in which your soul is cast
Never will fetter you!

You are a minister whose days
Are sermons, and you spread
So much good cheer along life's ways,
You keep us comforted.
My will is not as strong as yours,
But your example shows
I can climb up, while Faith endures,

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO
Friday, Nov. 11, 1927

Business in Appleton was quite generally suspended for a minute at 11 o'clock today as a tribute to the memory of the men who gave their lives in the great war which ended nine years ago at that hour.

C. H. Watts, Neenah chief of police, was the first to enroll in the Neenah chapter of the American Red Cross as the annual roll call began today.

The marriage of Miss Margaret Kettner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kettner, Shiocton, and John Lauer, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lauer, took place at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Patrick church at Stevensville.

Albert DuBois, Jr., Neenah, Joseph Gerend, Kaukauna, Jeannette Jones, Menasha, and Kenneth Miles, Appleton, were included in the six Lawrence college students who received highest honors during 1926-27.

Carl McKee and the Appleton Mixed quartet, of which he is the leader, will feature the entertainment at an Armistice day dinner dinner sponsored by the New London American Legion post at Knights of Columbus hall.

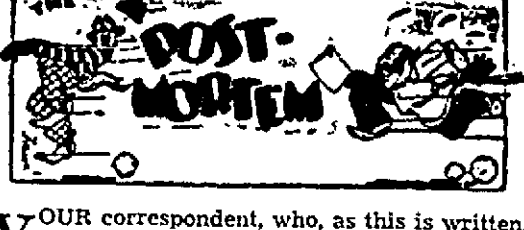

Louis Faust, Kaukauna, was elected president of the Wisconsin Well Drillers at an organizational meeting in the Northland Hotel at Green Bay Thursday afternoon.

25 YEARS AGO
Friday, Nov. 13, 1912

Fire of an unknown origin caused nearly $1,000 damage to the Hughes and Company tailor shop, 736 College avenue, about 10:30 last night. Walter Hughes, Fred Schlitz and W. W. Schalk were in the building about 15 minutes before the outbreak of the fire when Mr. Hughes went in to change his shoes.

Chairmen for Commercial club committees were announced today and will serve as members of the club's board of directors. The chairmen are Gustave Keller, civic improvements; George A. Schmidt, merchants; F. J. Harwood, education; R. J. Meyer, publicity; W. A. Fannon, manufacturers; E. Schueller, membership; Joseph D. Steele, public utilities; James A. Wood, public welfare; H. L. Sherman, new industries; H. W. Tuttrup, finance; J. L. Sherman, new industries; A. A. Wettengel, nominations; Fred M. Wilcox, program; Dr. E. H. Brooks, professional.

APPLETON POST-CRESCENT

OUR correspondent, who, as this is written, has not read the report on the performance of James Melton, who sang here Wednesday night, wishes to report that he heartily enjoyed the sounds made by Mr. Melton in most of the first half of the program. . . . this is no doubt in direct contrast to the way the program was received by the people who like to arrange Artist Series programs here. . . . it seems a shame that artists who come here should be required to provide examples of technique for the benefit of a minority of music students and instructors. . . . this is a matter on which your correspondent has harped before and, of course, arrived nowhere. . . . he started back when Paderewski played here four years ago and was handed a group of fancy finger exercises to render for the people. . . . the public has been educated in enough grand opera, by way of the radio, to come to appreciate classical music to a greater degree than formerly. . . . but there is classical music and there is classical music. . . . it all depends whose . . .

Melton, who is one of those people without a radio sponsor about whom I was talking yesterday, has the knack, I was told, of making every woman in the audience feel as though he was singing directly to her.

What a man.

Life does not deal the same cards to everyone. The only place where my singing doesn't attract unfavorable comment is at a football stadium where nobody can hear me anyway.

The shouting around the University of Michigan campus about financial support reputedly being given freshmen athletes by alumni of Michigan university leaves me somewhat yawning.

There probably is support being given freshmen by alumni of Michigan. You and I can name eight or nine other Big Ten schools where the same situation could probably be proved to exist. Chicago may be an exception, but I doubt it.

I am more inclined to agree that the current squawk finds its source in people who are trying to stir up trouble for the Michigan coach. By winning three conference games by one point, Michigan may be said to be improving over last year. So the anti-Kipke group has to turn on the heat in a different way than is generally employed for blasting a coach.

With Doc Spears, the technique was somewhat different, but the results were eventually conclusive.

Secretary Morgenthau's announcement the other night about curtailing federal spending and balancing the budget seems to come at just the right time politically.

Up until now the New Deal has taken credit for all improvement—explaining that it was "planned that way"—in business conditions, although much improvement was made in spite of the New Deal.

With a drop-off imminent, the New Deal can say after a while: "See, we gave you your chance, and you muffed it."

INHERITANCE OF MENTALITY

Like father, like son, is a familiar saying with much truth in it. If the father or mother be especially talented or endowed with exceptional aptitude in childhood, youth and adult life, the child is more likely to have some similar attainment or ability. But it has little in any influence upon the temperament or mentality of the child what the expectant mother occupies herself with during pregnancy. The child's mentality, traits and character have been determined years before that time, so far as mere parents have anything to do with it. The grandparents and great grandparents and great-great grandparents and their forebears for as many generations as you care to count back developed the line and established its caliber and type; the parents play only a minor role in carrying on the race.

Feeble-mindedness is universally recognized as a heritable defect. Most civilized states prohibit marriage of a feeble-minded person. However, there are various degrees of feeble-mindedness. Thus, idocy is the lowest grade or degree—an idiot is so defective from birth or from an early age as to be unable to guard himself against common physical dangers; a person whose mental age according to the Binet-Simon measuring scale for intelligence does not develop beyond two years. An imbecile has an intelligence quotient (by the same scale) of from three to seven years. A moron attains a mental development not higher than that of a normal child or eight to twelve years of age. Obviously a great many morons marry and have families; millions of morons are good citizens, good workers, good parents, good customers for the great American swindler.

Offspring of a feeble-minded person may be feeble-minded, epileptic, insane, or just peculiar. The same fact applies to epilepsy and insanity; children of an epileptic person do not necessarily have epilepsy but are more likely than ordinarily to be feeble-minded, insane, neurotic or defective in one way or another. From many family histories it has been noted that 24 per cent of the offspring in families where one parent is sane, the other insane, are insane or feeble-minded or epileptic. If both parents are insane, feeble-minded or epileptic, 50 per cent of the offspring will be defective. In the general population it is estimated that from 1 to 2 per cent are insane, feeble-minded or epileptic.

Alcoholism in the parents is regarded a factor of epilepsy in the child, by numerous authorities. From Wesscher's "Textbook of Clinical Neurology" (Saunders, 1936) I quote: "Alcoholism in the parents, especially if the child is begotten during a debauch, may lead to the convulsive state in the offspring, in addition to other mental defects." In a series of cases reported some years ago, epilepsy in the child was ascribed to intoxication of the parents on a single occasion the wedding night.

A colony of guinea pigs subjected to fumes of alcohol daily, over a period of fifteen years, 5,000 animals, as reported by Haven Emerson, "Alcohol and Man" (Macmillan, 1935), showed . . .

Well, now, before we give the conclusions Emerson drew from this experiment, how much weight would you give to animal experimentation as applied to man?

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Tales of the wretched traffic conditions in New York are not always believed by outsiders, but here is a mishap, featuring Sheila Barrett, which really illustrates how hopeless things have become.

Miss Barrett was thoughtless enough to enter a cab on a recent evening and give an address on the island side of the Hudson. Now everybody should know that taxis are no way to make speed while crossing the island. The traffic is so slow that one could easily walk twice the distance in half the time.

But Miss Barrett still had several hours to keep her appointment, and, optimistic that she is, thought that she would reach there in time.

Finally, after the cab had made only five blocks in 46 minutes, she became bored. "Had I known we were going to be here this long," Miss Barrett said archly, "I'd have gone into that restaurant for something to eat."

"You've still got plenty of time," cried the driver encouragingly. "If we get started before you get back, I'll yell."

In a sentimental gesture which should be applauded by all who enjoy an occasional nod to the past, the Hotel Roosevelt has introduced "Betsy Flanagan" to New York.

Betsy was a lady who kept an inn near Yonkers during the Revolutionary period, and her tap room was a favorite rendezvous for British and French officers whose commands were stationed in the vicinity.

One day an American officer arrived with several cock pheasants which he had stolen from a British commissary, and asked that they be roasted. In preparing the feast Betsy also prepared some potent drinks and decorated each glass with one of the naughty feathers from the cock pheasants' tails.

This was a great success and caused one gallant to spring to his feet:

"Here's to Betsy and her marvelous drink," he cried. "It offers the same delightful sensations

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The Mexican government, in bringing the abundant life to that country's under-privileged 90 per cent, is employing methods which provide our state department with a round-the-clock nightmare.

Mexican laws authorize the government to make little farms out of big ones and it so happens that some of the very biggest farms are owned by wealthy Americans. Rich Americans have been the target of recent share-the-wealth drives in this country but hardly in the direct approach adopted by President Cardenas.

Under the law, Cardenas may limit the size of any farm to 150 acres of irrigated land. Measured by American farm standards that is still a sizeable acreage, but it is merely a chicken-run compared to some of the foreign-owned estates Cardenas is cutting up, waste fashion, for distribution among landless peons.

As an example, the 272,000-acre estate of William Jenkins in the state of Puebla has been "nationalized." It will be split up into cow pasture sizes to be farmed by peons who never before owned the shadow under their own sombreros. Similarly large tracts are owned in Sonora by Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney and the John Hays Hammond estate.

A Lesson In Valuation

This business of putting the farm laborer on a place of his own has been one of the theme songs of the present administration in the United States and naturally this country can't foam with wrath when Mexico decides that what is good for the share-cropper north of the Rio Grande also is good for the peon below. Little in the U. S. farm tenant bill, however, parallels the do-it-yourself purpose of the Cardenas plan.

The state department, whose job it is to fret over these things, does not dispute the virtue of the Mexican objectives but decries the method.

It seems that the Mexican government is frying foreign land owners in a grease of their own boiling. It is an old Yankee trick to report to the tax assessor that a farm is worth for taxation only a small part of its real value. It has worked for years in every state in the union and has brought near to perfection in many places in Mexico. Large landed estates were valued by their owners for tax purposes at only a fragment of their true worth.

Very well, says Cardenas, that is what we will pay when we take them over.

Perhaps even that harsh treatment might have been passed over without state department intercession if it were not that the Mexican government is paying the American land owners in Mexican bonds of a type which have no great immediate value, instead of hard cash.

Mexico's Supreme Court

Foreign land owners used to have recourse to Mexican courts but Cardenas performed an operation on Mexico's supreme court that makes the Roosevelt court plan seem as impotent as day-old beer.

Ten of the justices were limited to six years and they have to run for office right along with the president. So effective was the change that the court soon agreed to cooperate with the administration's social betterment program. It exhibited the style of its cooperation by refusing to hear a test case of the constitutionality of the seize-and-divide law.

The state department is talking very frankly behind the scenes with Mexican officials to remind them that the "good-neighbor" policy must work both ways. But fairness—not fury—characterizes the representations.

CASTLE TO BE HOMELEY

Windsor Castle in England is to be made almost as comfortable as a modern home. The King and Queen plan to have new carpets, more gas fires and better lighting. The Queen is expected to choose the new patterns and styles for the carpets and decorations in London shortly. State-rooms will have better lighting, and the Grand Staircase will get a carpet that will give the approach to the royal apartments a new "atmosphere." Some of the rooms in the King's Suite have not been renovated since the days of Edward VII.

LAND SAVED FROM MOSS

In its campaign to reclaim its waste land Scotland is attempting to save some from a blanket of moss 25 feet deep. Near Carnwath the moss is so soft that a horse and cart would easily sink out of sight. Experts have been directing former unemployed men to cut draining trenches 10 feet deep on 180 acres. After the water was drained a tractor smoothed the uneven surface. As a first test 20 acres of the prepared land has been sown with grass seed. If successful many other moss areas will be planted to provide winter grazing.

as the cock's tail feathers offer to the eye."

Whereupon one of the French officers exclaimed: "Vive le cock-tail!" And that was how the cock-tail obtained its name.

Betsy, bless her soul, is resting in her grave in an old cemetery at Lewiston now, but her memory is being saluted in a right proper fashion on Madison avenue. By diligent search, hotel authorities have succeeded in obtaining the ingredients Betsy used in the first cocktail, and are featuring it now in all their bars.

So, the next time you feel like tipping your hat to history, call for a Betsy Flanagan.

Potato Day for County Area Will Be Held Nov. 18

Program and Exhibits Will Be Held at Hortonville Auditorium

A special potato day with program and exhibits on seed potato improvements will be held at the Hortonville village auditorium Thursday, Nov. 18, according to arrangements completed by R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent, in cooperation with the Wisconsin Potato Growers' association.

Six carloads of improved certified seed potatoes from northern seed producing areas already have been obtained by growers in this county for next spring's planting as a part of growers' plans to improve the quality of potatoes produced in this area. Ways of handling this seed together with answers to other important potato management methods, will be explained at the meeting, according to the county agent.

Staff members of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture and officials of the state department of agriculture and markets are cooperating with local potato growers, shippers, manufacturers and dealers in this meeting, and will be on the program to explain parts of the potato growing and marketing program. Grading machinery and disease specimens will be on display.

A similar program will be held for the Waupaca county area at the village hall in Scandinavia Nov. 19.

DISCOVERS VIRUS CAUSING MEASLES

Announcement was made by Teachers college, Columbia university, that the hitherto unseen virus causing measles has a visible stage in the throat. Prof. Jean Broadhurst (above) was credited with the discovery, expected to enable doctors to detect and quarantine measles two or three days earlier than at present and lessen spread of measles.

Hatcheries Plant 1,934,273 Black Bass During Year

Conservation Department Places Commercial Value at $290,140

Madison — Black bass produced by the fisheries division of the conservation department this year, if sold at the current market price, would have paid entire operation cost of all fisheries activities and in addition brought a profit of $65,000, price lists of commercial hatcheries show.

The division produced and planted 1,934,273 black bass fingerlings this year. Wisconsin estates buying black bass fingerlings for stocking of private waters paid $150 a thousand both this year and last year. At this price this year's plant of black bass would have been worth $290,140.95, or about $65,000 more than it cost the state to produce more than a billion fish of all varieties.

A new pond at the Madison hatchery this year produced about 110,000 black bass which at the current commercial price would be valued at $16,500.

The state's chief black bass production points, besides the Madison hatchery, were Burlington, Dotfield, Woodruff, Blair, and De Soto.

Wisconsin produces fish for the stocking of public waters only. People who want to stock private waters must buy their fish from commercial hatcheries who make a business of supplying this type of demand.

RUSSIA TO TAKE CENSUS

Because the All-Union census of January 6, 1937, was marked by "grave violations of the rules of statistical science" and other mistakes, Soviet Russia will take another in January, 1939. Orders to this effect have just been issued in Moscow.

The President Makes a Peace Offer to the Utilities

In his press conference on Wednesday the president announced the terms on which his administration is willing to make peace with the electric power companies. For, until the President spoke, it was at least an open question as to whether the private utilities could make peace with the New Deal at any price. The leading spirits on the administration side appeared to be men who believed in the nationalization of the power industry and were determined to harry the private companies until they surrendered and retired. The president himself had repeatedly exhibited a strong personal predilection for this policy, and at no time has it been possible for the utilities to know what they could and must do to obtain peace and a friendly relationship with the administration.

But in the Wednesday interview the president did at long last state his terms of peace. Though they may seem severe terms to some utilities' executives, there are the best of reasons for thinking that they are real terms. Consequently, the utilities industry could make no more costly error than to ignore or reject hastily the president's offer. Since the days when the industry failed to clean its own house and thus provoked public hostility and punitive legislation, it has had no better opportunity than it has now to end the political war between the government and itself.

Terms Involve Methods Of Calculating The Rates
The president's terms of peace have to do with the method of calculating the rates which private utilities are allowed to charge. It will be useful, I think, to remind ourselves of the elementary principles involved.

A utility is a monopoly which sells something that people have to buy. It is called a monopoly because Mr. Gabriel Angel, living on Paradise Boulevard, can obtain electricity from only one company. He cannot shop around, as he can when he is buying an automobile or a pair of shoes, for the goods that suit him best at the price he is willing to pay. He must buy electricity from one company. And he must buy electricity. For he cannot really light his home with kerosene lamps and candles.

Thus there is for him only one seller of electricity and just this is what is meant by a perfect monopoly. The company, if it were free to act as it liked, would have him at its mercy. It could charge whatever it thought Gabriel Angel could be made to pay. It could even turn off his electricity if it wanted to. And so, because he has no protection from competition in the open market, because the company is a monopolist unrestrained by competition, Gabriel's end of the bargain has to be protected by law. That is the reason why utilities, as distinguished from automobile companies or grocery stores, are regulated by law. The government intervenes because ordinary commercial competition does not exist.

Determination Of Rates Always Crux Of Problem
So far every one is in agreement. But for more than forty years, perhaps I should say for about seventy years, there has been an unending dispute about the method by which the government regulating commissions should determine the price, or as we say the rate, to be charged by railroad, street car, ferry, gas electric, water, pipe line, and telephone monopolists. This dispute has generated enough argument on soap boxes, in legislatures, in courts, to bore the most patient man who ever lived. It has employed an army of lawyers and provided the means to a career for thousands of politicians. And yet nothing is settled. And even when something seems to be settled because the supreme court has spoken solemnly, it does not stay settled, and very soon there is another political agitation and a whole series of lawsuits.

The crux of the dispute has always been how to calculate the rate. The conventions of private property require that the investor who owns property shall be allowed, if he can find the customers, to earn the current rate of interest plus a profit to induce him to invest and to make up for the risk. If this profit were denied to him, he would buy government bonds or even store his money in a safe deposit box.

Two Schools Of Thought On Property Valuation
Now in ordinary business the price which can be charged is fixed by competing bids and offers in an open market. For the utilities there is no open market, and, therefore, an artificial substitute for the market has had to be invented. This substitute consists in saying that the legal value of the property is x, that the proper rates of interest plus profit is y, and that therefore y times x gives the legal price which may be charged.

The heart of the dispute, obviously, is what the legal value of the property ought to be. On this point there are two great schools of thought, each with reputable and competent defenders. The one school, which has had the sanction of the supreme court for some forty years, holds that the legal value of utility property in 1937 should be the cost of reproducing that property in 1937. The other school, of which the leading exponent has long been Mr. Justice Brandeis, holds that the legal value of the property should be whatever the investor has actually invested in it prudently. By using the term prudent investment the intention is to write off money invested foolishly, as for example, when a company buys a plant that cost $50,000 and is held up to the tune of $200,000.

The president said on Wednesday that he would make peace with the utilities if they would agree to let rates be calculated on the basis, not of present reproduction costs, but of actual prudent investment.

Now at the present time most, but by no means all, the utilities want the reproduction cost theory to prevail. But they did not always think that way. In the closing decades of the nineteenth century the utilities urged the opposite theory, and, ironically enough, it was the reformers, the predecessors of the New Dealers, as a matter of fact the late Senator LaFollette, who drove the utilities, screaming and kicking, to accept rates based on current reproduction costs.

There is a simple reason for this reversal of attitude on the part both of the utilities and the reformers. In the period between 1873 and 1896 the general level of prices was falling. As a result, the present cost of reproducing a plant always tended to be less than the original cost. So the reformers, who wanted low rates, argued for reproduction cost, and the utilities, who wanted high rates, argued for investment cost.

But from 1896 to 1929 the general level of prices was rising. This meant that generally it cost more to reproduce a property than to build it originally. During this period the utilities adopted Senator LaFollette's theory, and the reformers adopted the theory which the utilities had abandoned.

President Right On Grounds Of Justice
The president wants to go back to the rate-making principles of the period before about 1898. Being a reformer, he is quite right—assuming that for the long pull the level of world prices will be upward. But he is right also, not as a speculator on the future, but on the ground of justice and common sense and practical convenience.

The ordinary rules of competitive capitalism cannot be applied to the natural monopolies. Therefore, it seems just and sensible to base their rates on the actual historical record of the money which has been invested honestly and with reasonable intelligence; the word reasonable to be defined ultimately by independent courts. This is the only basis for rate making which is not a perpetual speculation on the rise and fall of the price level. It is the only basis which can be reached definitely by accountants, and does not call for interminable litigation.

Offer In Accord With Political Necessities

I should have no doubt myself that the president's offer is sincere. For while he and certain of his supporters might feel at a loss during the election time if they did not have the utilities for a scapegoat, Mr. Roosevelt's offer is in entire accord with his most practical political necessities.

Thus, although he does not need political peace with the utilities, he very urgently needs an economic peace; he needs a revival of that industry to help stem the depression which is gradually getting worse. So even if I were as suspecting as Mr. Roosevelt's worst enemies, I should have faith in this offer because it fits so exactly Mr. Roosevelt's own needs.

It has none of the air of an empty gesture. For he offers terms that call for a substantial concession by the private companies—yet they are terms which disinterested and conservative men have long believed were just and sound. If they are accepted, Mr. Roosevelt will obtain lower rates for the people; the utilities will have removed the fundamental obstacle to amicable relations with the government and the politicians.

The proposal is, therefore, practical and significant, and should be met with reason and good will.

Students Stage Debate on Unicameral Legislation At Woman's Club Meeting

THE QUESTION of unicameral legislation for Wisconsin was discussed pro and con by two students of the University of Wisconsin, Abraham Schneider and Douglas Pledger, before Appleton Federated Woman's club Thursday afternoon in a no-decision debate at the club house. The opening speaker, before beginning his talk, pointed out that he and his colleague were not interested particularly in convincing the audience one way or the other about the question under consideration, but in having their listeners realize that the question is an important one and also that University of Wisconsin students do something besides go to football games and dances.

Schneider, the speaker for the affirmative, built up his case for the one house system of legislation by pointing to the state of Nebraska which turned to that system in 1934. He pointed out that the principal defects in the bicameral system are the power of the conference committee, inefficiency which injures legislation, and lack of definite responsibility. Discussing the conference committee, he charged that two men of one house can block a bill and for this reason politics enter into the situation readily. He further charged that under the bicameral system, one house limits consideration of a bill in the hope that the other will consider it more fully, and that the size and complexity of two houses makes for unwieldy functioning.

The affirmative speaker discussed Nebraska's one house legislature, pointing out that the Democratic and Republican members are almost evenly divided, the group spent less money and the men elected were of higher caliber than previously.

Pledger opened the negative side of the argument by admitting that the two house system is not perfect, but held that the remedy is in reform and not abolition. He stated his opinion that bicameralism is fundamentally effective and strong enough to merit its retention, and charged that unicameralism not only would not correct the evils now present but would bring on new evils.

McCulloch Is Speaker At Institute

QUESTIONS dealing with fundamental economic problems such as, "Should public utilities continue under private ownership?" which will be discussed in the Economic Prebiscite to be sponsored by the Council for Social Action of the Congregational church in the fall of 1938 were presented by Frank Waugh McCulloch, Chicago, a member of the industrial relations committee of the Council for Social Action, at a regional institute for lay men and women as well as ministers of this area Thursday at First Congregational church.

The institute, one of four to be held throughout Wisconsin, was designed to introduce the ideas of the prebiscite and to get reactions of lay people and ministers concerning some of the economic questions of the day, and to stimulate people to become better informed on these questions.

During the afternoon Mr. McCulloch led a discussion from 1:30 to 5 o'clock after which supper was served to about 25 persons at the Y. M. C. A. In the evening Mr. McCulloch spoke at the church night service at the Congregational church, his subject being "The Economic Foundations of World Peace," in which he pointed out that world peace among the nations is dependent on harmonious conditions at home, especially in industrial relations. After the meeting there was an open forum during which the audience asked questions. About 80 persons attended the evening meeting.

Sunday school teachers and officers of St. John Evangelical and Reformed church will meet at 7:30 Friday evening with the Misses Lillian and Irene Parsons, 512 W. Winnebago street. Plans will be made for the Christmas eve program.

'I Am Out of Politics For Good,' Schmiedeman Tells His Interviewers

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Albert G. Schmiedeman, former governor of Wisconsin and state Democratic chieftain, yesterday and today answered all political inquiries with the smiling rejoinder that "I am now out of politics for good."

Schmiedeman, state director of the Federal Housing Administration, visiting in Madison this week on the affairs of the FHA, declined to discuss state political issues, and the prospects for a coalition of the Republicans in Wisconsin and the Democratic organization which he once headed.

He expressed only mild interest in the proposal by prominent spokesmen of the Wisconsin Democratic party and Republican leaders that the two parties join forces against the LaFollette government next year, and indicated that he will not attend the convention which has been called to discuss the question in Madison Nov. 20.

Now, 73, and despite the loss of a leg two years ago, the former governor asserts that "he never felt better in his life." Enthusiastic about the operations of the FHA, he declares that agency has "helped thousands of homeowners, especially in Wisconsin."

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY ROBBINS COONS

Hollywood—One of the most carefully planned careers in the movies is that of 11-year-old Jane Withers, and the planner is a "mommy" who lacks the disagreeable characteristics usually associated with that term.

Out at the Pomona race track, where Jane is on location for a new version of the famous "C h e c k e r s" yarn, Mrs. Ruth Withers was sitting at her usual respectful distance behind the camera. The only time she took part in the movie proceedings was when Jane, during the scene, got something in her eye—and then Mrs. Withers removed it only when Jane was sent over to her.

Not having seen Jane in some time, I was rather surprised at the lack of change in her. She's only three inches taller than when she first cracked pictures in Shirley Temple's "Bright Eyes," but she's as brown as toast.

"Mother Wanted Stage Career"—She hasn't missed a day in pictures because of illness in these three years," Mrs. Withers remarked. "She's happiest when she's on a picture—hates to see one end, can't wait for another to begin."

That's why I think she won't ever want to give up acting. Right now she thinks she would like a year or two at college, and of course she'll have it."

Jane's film career represents the fruition of her mother's own unrealized dream of theatrical success. When they came here from Atlanta, they had tough times breaking in, but Mrs. Withers refused to give up. She was right, Jane now, unaided by spectacular or expensive picture vehicles, has pulled herself up to the very edge of the charmed circle of box-office favorites. In the last poll she ranked eleventh—quite a feat when you consider she is on the same lot with Shirley Temple.

If her film career encounters an awkward age problem, the Withers plan to keep on in radio and personal appearance tours until college time. Jane's studying Spanish now to include South America in her itinerary.

A Child Star's Future—Jane and her mother have never been apart for so much as a single night—and the fact brought up an interesting question. After devoting her whole life to Jane—back home she never accepted a bridge invitation unless she could bring the child along—what will the mother do when Jane grows up, and gets married as most girls do? Except for Jane, her home, and her husband (who's in business out here now), Mrs. Withers has refused to let other interests into her life.

"Jane's a sensible girl," her mother answered, "and I don't think she would marry foolishly. When she finds a nice boy, I'm not going to do a thing to break up her

Committee Favors $1,500 for Dental Hygiene Program

Recommends $1,000 for Seymour Fair and $600 For Good Will Tour

Recommendations for appropriations of $1,500 for a dental hygiene program in the county, $1,000 for the Seymour Fair and Driving Park association and $600 for county participation in the annual Wisconsin Good Will tour were made by the executive committee to the county board this morning.

The appropriation for the dental hygiene program was suggested by Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, in her annual report. She said there has been no definite program in the county to check and care for teeth of children, and that the teeth of many in needy families were being neglected.

An appropriation of $1,000 was asked earlier this week by the fair association, and the executive committee's recommendation for it was made because the fair will be the only one in the county next year.

Advertise County
The $600 appropriation recommended by the committee would be used to purchase display space on the annual good will train which travels to all parts of the United States each year. The committee felt that it was a worthy undertaking and that the county has products well worth advertising.

Arthur Schroeder, Manitowoc, district supervisor of assessments, urged that the county continue a project started sometime ago in correcting descriptions of property and suggested that a plan be adopted so that the corrected records can be permanently kept.

Errors have been creeping into the assessment rolls for the last hundred years and many acres and lots are missing from the rolls, he explained. The errors resulted from copying the rolls from year to year and not following a procedure outlined in the field book, he said.

Stopped Temporarily
John E. Hantschel, county clerk, informed the board that the project has been only temporarily discontinued by the WPA.

Schroeder said corrected records could be plated and a person employed to be in charge of them. This plan could be carried out at a cost of approximately $4,000, he said.

A. J. Thelen of the Wisconsin County Boards' association in reporting on legislative activities of the association said the state has made a "fire department system" of relief in the state. Taxes are levied and then spent only in spots where needed most instead of distributed in a uniform method, he said.

Shifting Burden
"There has been a shifting of burden from the state to the county, and this is not economy," he declared.

He continued that there is a danger of this method creeping into the method of distributing other state aids and also of the federal government adopting the system.

The association has succeeded in preventing the state from pro-rating state aid for old age and blind pensions and for dependent children when there is a shortage of funds and for the first time counties have received their full share, he said.

Misleads Public
The state has set up a program which leads the public to believe that it is the county that increases the taxes, although it is the state that makes mandatory such levies as the school tax, special charges, social security aids and unemployment compensation, he said, in urging the county to join others to present a true picture of the situation to the public.

A recent proposal has been approved by the board of regents to increase the taxes of the Wisconsin General hospital, and the counties should demand that this increase should be cared for through the million dollar fund set up for the emergency board, he said.

A petition of the town of Oneida for an appropriation of $900 from the county for building an $1,800 bridge was referred to the highway committee.

Against Resolution
Supervisors voted down a resolution which would change the election of the county relief and welfare director from one to every two years. Supervisor Mike Jacobs suggested that the department be combined with that of the county service officer or with the pension department. Supervisor John Bottensek said the county has been adding new departments and not eliminating any, and that a period of retrenchment should be started.

The board adopted the report of the board of equalization which places the assessed value of the county at $89,103,767.

Work on the county asylum addition has been 70 per cent completed, it was revealed in a report of the asylum building committee. The addition will be completed before the February session of the board.

Ask Appropriation
E. C. Boert, Oshkosh, of the Children's Home society, Milwaukee, told the board of the work being done by the society and asked for an appropriation to carry on the work next year. Mrs. E. Harder, case worker, said a local office is maintained at 106 W. College avenue and that during the last year more than 50 birth cases have been cared for.

The annual reports of the highway commissioner and of the park board on tax delinquent collections were adopted. A communication of the state department of agriculture reported on the progress made in the last year in foul brood eradication of bees and stated no appropriation is needed from the county for the program next year.

A report of the executive committee which recommended filing of a request for an appropriation to send the county superintendent of schools to the annual meeting of

Colder Tomorrow, Weatherman Says

Snow Flurries Predicted For North Portions Of State

Colder weather will strike Appleton and vicinity tomorrow, the weatherman forecast today. Rain that will turn into snow flurries is predicted for north portions of the state.

The pleasant fall weather that has marked most of November continued here today, with sunshine and temperatures in the forties. At 1 o'clock this afternoon the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 46 degrees, a rapid ascent from the 24-hour minimum of 29 recorded at 7 o'clock this morning.

Miami, Fla. had 82 degrees yesterday, highest in the nation, while Modena's 22 was lowest.

Board Considers Credit System, Work Guidance

Plans for the establishment of a high school credit system at the vocational school and a department for vocational guidance were discussed at a meeting of the board of vocational education yesterday. It was decided to make further study of the two proposals. Under the credit plan, persons who do not have high school diplomas could earn them by taking courses at the vocational school.

The American Education society was adopted. Election of officers will be made by the supervisors at Saturday morning's session.

First Lady Urges Strict Control of Arms Production

Believes League and World Court Can be Instruments for Peace

Fond du Lac — (P) — The United States can aid the cause of peace by strictly controlling the production of arms and the munitions of war, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt declared in an Armistice address here last night.

She said, too, that she "still" felt the "League of Nations and the world court might be useful instruments for world peace but not . . . unless the nations of the world believe in them."

"One of the very definite things that we can do for peace," the nation's first lady said, "is to control more strictly the production of arms and munitions in our own country either through government ownership or strict supervision with a view to producing no more than is necessary to keep our defenses at a normal point."

"Another principal thing," she added, "is to change our own hearts and develop in ourselves the desire to live in peace."

Mrs. Roosevelt said it was useless to believe the time ever would exist when there would not be differences between nations, and because of this "we should plan methods whereby we can adjust these differences."

Mrs. Roosevelt spoke under the auspices of a Citizens' Armistice day committee. She was introduced to her audience by United States Senator F. Ryan Duffy, Fond du Lac.

Would Change Farm Bill
Senator Duffy (D) said last night he would seek amendment of the proposed agricultural control bill to include dairy products among the basic commodities when the measure comes before the special session of congress which convenes next Monday.

Duffy left for Washington by automobile after Mrs. Roosevelt's address.

"I am hopeful that when the agriculture bill comes up, dairy products can be made a basic commodity, even if amendment is necessary," Duffy said. "This was not contemplated in the original bill and I realize there might be some difficulty because of the perishable nature of dairy products."

"However, it will be possible to secure regulations more beneficial to the dairy farmer if this inclusion can be arranged."

Duffy said he believed the measure should contain some restrictions which would prevent land which had been taken out of use in the control of other products from being used to compete against established dairy areas such as Wisconsin.

Discussing proposed changes in the neutrality laws, Duffy said he would favor giving wider discretion to the president in the handling of foreign affairs.

Consider Plan to Ease Tax Burden On Smaller Firms continue to vote them, because public appropriations are the most powerful vote-getting instrument a congressman has."

Morgenthau had suggested that 1939 expenditures could be brought into line with revenue by a $700,000,000 cut in appropriations for roads, public works relief and agriculture.

There was no comment from most agencies handling these funds, but officials of the bureau of roads said definite commitments would prevent as large a cut in road expenditures as Morgenthau proposed, unless congress took action at the special session beginning next week.

The treasury secretary had suggested there might be a return to the pre-depression figure of $100,000,000 a year in road spending. He estimated this year's figure would be $253,000,000.

Farm Program
Of $900,000,000 in agriculture expenditures which Morgenthau said might be reduced, about $700,000,000 service is for regular department functions and the soil conservation service. The latter's cost is expected to approach $500,000,000 this year and department economists have estimated that the new farm program, which will embrace it, will cost $700,000,000 or more.

Morgenthau gave $535,000,000 as the prospective total this year for public works—items for which congressmen receive especial pressure from their home districts. Appropriations and allocations already made for 1939 total more than $600,000,000.

A novel program is being planned for the roll call dinner to be held at the Appleton Y. M. C. A. at 6 o'clock Monday evening. A skit on how to approach the potential member is being prepared and songs composed for the occasion will be sung.

Establish Offices To Aid Jobless in Filling Out Cards

Chairman Explains Who Should Register in Unemployment Census

Offices will be established at the Labor Temple, city hall and at the Appleton post office to assist jobless persons in filling out unemployment census report cards, according to William L. Crow, chairman of the citizens' census committee.

The census will begin in Appleton and the nation Tuesday and all report cards must be returned to the office by Saturday, Nov. 20. Cards will be sent out from the post office and will carry all questions needed to compile a list of the nation's unemployed.

Mr. Crow today cleared up the question of who should register and who should not. He said that all persons who are totally unemployed, are able to work and want to work should fill out cards. Persons who are partly employed and are able and want to do more work also are eligible. All persons working full time or part time on projects of the WPA, NYA, CCC or other emergency work projects which are supported by public funds are eligible.

Persons who should not register include those who are working full time for wages or commissions, those in business, on the farm or having a profession; persons who are working part time and do not want more work; persons on strike unless actively seeking another job; those who are temporarily sick or disabled but have a full time job to which they will return; persons who are unable to work because of permanent disability or chronic illness; retired persons; youths excluded from work because of child labor laws; housewives, unless they are able to do other work and are looking for work with pay; and full time students at high school or college even though they are seeking incidental employment.

Kaukauna Cagers To Begin Regular Rehearsals Soon

Cliff Vanevenhoven, High Scoring Forward, Only Returning Veteran

Kaukauna—With the final game of the 1937 football season gone by, preparations for the coming basketball season will begin a week from today, Coach Paul E. Little said yesterday. A group of candidates has been practicing for several weeks under B. D. Rice, assistant basketball coach, but most of the members of this year's team will come from the football squad.

With but one member of the quintet which started most of last year's games back, prospects for the year are none too good. The only regular to return is Cliff Vanevenhoven, high scoring forward.

The other members of last year's starting team, Ves Hanby and George Hatchell at guards, Art Koehne at forward and Robert Bootz at center, have graduated.

Bill Peterson, a senior this year, won a letter bid for this year's center post. Lee Lambie, although winning no letter, saw considerable action at a forward post. From the B squad Carl Pendergast, John Grogan, Gerald Meyer, Robert Stanello and Robert Hochmeier will come up as good prospects. Neil McCarty, a member of last year's first squad, will be in the fight for a guard position.

The two best prospects from the freshmen ranks are Bill Aiger, a janky player from Juneau, and Carl Giordana, a Holy Cross athlete.

Kaukauna Girl Scout Patrol Elect Their Leaders, Assistants

Kaukauna—New officers for patrols of the girls scouts were elected at a meeting of the scouts Wednesday evening. Kathryn Ann Driessen was elected leader of the Ace patrol, with Dolores Derricks named assistant leader.

Mary McCarty was named leader of the Arboretum patrol, and Germaine Schmalz assistant leader. The Eagle patrol chose Betty Klumb as leader and Carol Lee as assistant. Marian Kline was chosen to head the Redwing patrol, with Rosemary Flynn as assistant.

Joan Mulholland was chosen to lead the White Fawn patrol, and Betty Glaff as assistant. Jo Ann McCarty was named as patrol leader of the Twin Stars, with Jane Bolinski assistant. Two patrols did not elect officers, as insufficient members were present. Officers of these patrols will be chosen at the next meeting.

Tests passed at the meeting were: five points of health, Betty Klumb, Rosemary Stegeman; sewing, Jane Bolinski; cooking, Sally Boy, Mary Schell; flag, Carol Schley; first aid, first class, Betty McCarty, Mary Alice Flanagan; training a tenderfoot, Beata Aufreiter.

Students Rehearsing for Presentation of Comedy

Kaukauna—With the production of the senior class play "Bashful Bobby," scheduled for next Thursday evening, members of the cast will start intensive stage rehearsals Saturday afternoon, Miss Alice Gruenberger, dramatics coach, said yesterday. The proceeds of the play will go towards the production of the Papyrus, high school annual, as has been the custom in former years.

This year's play is a comedy in three acts, and concerns a group of high school students on a week end party. One of the members of the party is something of a hypnotist, and practices on several of the guests.

The result of one of his attempts transforms Bashful Bobby of the title into a dashing Lechivar, and when attempts to bring back his original nature fail Madame Du Pont, the hypnotist's instructor, enters the picture. How Bobby is restored to normal, but not after several exciting scenes, forms the substance of the third act.

The leading role of the play is taken by Bud Licht as Bobby, with Ruth Gertz acting as Helen, Bob's girl friend. Other members of the cast are John Duffy as Jim, Robert Cooper as Jerry and Russell Toms as Harry; all taking the parts of friends of Bobby's. Gerald Brewster as Joan and Joyce Roberts as Anne, friends of Helen's. Jean LaBorde as the butler, Geraldine Deno as Mrs. Matthews, Joan Flanagan as Miss Odessa, Marian Gilbert as the maid and Marie Rademacher as Madame Du Pont.

Both the leading man and lady are prominent in high school activities. Bud Licht was last year's basketball manager, and is a member of the glee club, annual staff, band and orchestra. Ruth Gertz is a member of the Kau-Hi News staff, the annual staff, glee club, Cap and Bells, and Quill and Scroll.

Legionnaires to Hold Party Sunday

Annual Armistice Day Observance to Begin In Afternoon

Kaukauna—The annual Armistice day party of the American Legion, Kaukauna Post No. 41, will be held Sunday afternoon and evening. Supper will be served at 5 o'clock.

The legion now has a paid up membership of 142, the membership committee announced yesterday, with 46 more 1938 membership cards coming in, in time for the annual airplane pickup yesterday, when the cards were taken to Appleton and picked up there by plane and taken to state headquarters. Those in charge of the dues drive expect that by Jan. 1 Kaukauna's legion post will number at least 200 members.

Dramatic Society Gives Armistice Day Program

Kaukauna—Armistice day was celebrated yesterday with a program at the Outagamie Rural Normal school. The chairman of the program, given by the Dramatic society of the school, was Harrison Larson.

National song of the allies were played to open the program, followed by a piano solo by Elda Bloy. Emma Kugel then led the flag salute, and Arnold Van Hout spoke on the significance of Armistice Day. Harrison Larson gave an oration, and the "Rose of No Man's Land," was sung by Miss Bloy. Miss Dorothy Alt presented a declamation, "His Word of Honor," and Miss Vera Mielke a reading, "Flanders Field and the Reply." The program ended with the song "Battle Song of Liberty," by the assembly.

Hollandtown K. C.'s will play the Greenwoods, and the Masons and the Molochs, in a tie for third, will battle.

27 Neenah High Football Players Will Get Letters

Red Rocket Grid Squad to Lose 13 Veterans This Year

Neenah — Twenty-seven Neenah High school football players will receive letters this year, it was announced today by Coach George Christoph, and with 14 of the lettermen returning next year, the coach is already anticipating a winning team for next season.

Thirteen gridgers will be lost through graduation, the coach said, but 12 of them are juniors and two are sophomores. Besides that the Red Rockets will have 15 men who didn't play enough to earn their "N" but saw some action during the season and who will be working for letters on the 1938 edition of the Red Rockets.

The senior lettermen are: Harold Borenz, co-captain, center; Dale Dodge, co-captain, tackle; Eugene Volck, guard; Richard Larsen, end; George Johnson, quarterback; Edsall Birdsall, halfback; Frank Haerli, halfback; Douglas Nelson, guard; Harold Bunker, quarterback; Alvin Staffeld, tackle; John Meyer, halfback; Harvey Koerwitz, guard.

The junior lettermen are: Daniel Schmidt, end; James Anderson, tackle; Robert Vanderwalke, guard; Donald Bentzen, end; Warren Ketterling, fullback; Kenneth Kuegel, fullback; Donald Blank, tackle; Roman Zimmerman, end; Donald McAlmair, end; Kenneth LaBombard, center; Arthur Krause, end; and Harold Hackstock, end.

The two sophomores who earned their letters are Richard Rucci, guard, and Clifton Allen, halfback. With few conversions, Coach Christoph will be able to send a complete veteran eleven into the 1938 Northwestern Wisconsin conference grid campaign, but the lettermen will have a tough time of it holding their berths, for several youngsters this season who made serious applications for the preferred positions will again be battling for first string assignments.

Also, Christoph will not be lacking in reserve material, and if the reserves show as much progress and promise next year the Red Rocket mentor will be in a position to attack a la Notre Dame.

Saw Action This Year

Neenah had only a mediocre season with the biggest disappointment a 6 to 0 defeat by Menasha in a hard fought battle. The Rockets didn't do so bad in scoring, however, tallying 78 points to their opponents' 75. The Rockets crossed enemy goal lines 12 times and completed six conversions in four games, while they were held scoreless in the other four tilts.

Won Three, Lost Eight
The Rockets won three and lost eight games this season. Two of the games they won were conference tilts, and four of their defeats were by conference leaders. Opening the season with a 7 to 0 victory over New London, the Rockets suffered a 12 to 6 setback the following Saturday by Mesmer High of Milwaukee. Shawano shut out the Rockets, 25 to 0, and West DePere also blanked the Christophens, 19 to 0. The following Saturday afternoon the Rockets took a new lease on life, trouncing the hapless Clintonville eleven, 39 to 0.

Neenah continued in the win column the next weekend, topping St. Mary of Menasha, 7 to 0, and then lost the annual grid classic to Menasha, 6 to 0.

It Is Said--

That the experiences a coach has with a football squad often are strange. Coach N. A. Calder recalled a game at Kaukauna played in the rain. An end was hurt and Calder told another player to go in. The substitute dug deep into his sweat shirt, pulled out a package of Peachey Scrap, and said, "Here, coach, hold my tobacco so it doesn't get wet." After the game Calder asked the youth about training rules and the player replied, "Sure, you said something about getting plenty of sleep, no drinking and no smoking, but you didn't say anything about chewing."

That the winter will be mild. Ted Beach, Jr., reported seeing mud turtles sunning themselves on top of the water when on a fishing trip the other day. Usually the turtles have buried themselves in the mud before this time.

Postpone Talk by Girl Performer Until Dec. 2

Menasha — Miss Mary Erditz, Oshkosh, who completed a season with the Ringling Brothers circus, will not speak to members of the Menasha Economics club until Friday, Dec. 3. It was previously reported she would speak next Friday. Mrs. H. S. Harwood will present a book review at the Nov. 12 meeting.

Bluejays Give Seven Touchdowns; Get Same Number During Season

Menasha—Only 7 touchdowns, an average of one a game, were scored against the Menasha High school football team in the season just concluded. However, the Menasha scoring machine showed no more scoring power, accounting for just 7 touchdowns itself.

A total of 47 points on 7 touchdowns and 5 conversions was scored against Menasha high. The Menasha gridgers scored 46 points on 7 touchdowns, 2 conversions, and a safety. Menasha pounced out many more yards in scoring their points than did their opponents.

Individual scoring leader was Drucks with 18 points on three touchdowns. Joseph Michalkiewicz accounted for two touchdowns and 12 points while Floyd and Kolasinski each scored one touchdown. Buksyk, placekicking guard, scored two conversions after touchdown.

Coach N. A. Calder stated that this year's line was the best he had ever coached and that despite the record, he thought the Bluejays the best team in the conference. Menasha was forced to battle against the breaks in almost every game.

Heavy Graduation Loss
A full first string will be lost this year by graduation. This includes four ends, Kolasinski, Malouf, Westberg and Osewalski; two tackles, Grimm and Yaley; three guards, Buksyk, Heckrodt and Dallman; an all-conference center, Schneider; a quarter, Heiss; two halfbacks, Knoll and Floyd, and a fullback, Michalkiewicz.

As a nucleus from which to start building at spring practice next year, Coach N. A. Calder has five lettermen. They are Jack Finch and Donald Drucks in the backfield; Landskron and Henk in the line, and E. Hill, end.

Several other players saw some action during the year and by their experience will have an edge for next season. They include Ken DuCharme, a small, elusive halfback, and Dan Stomien, quarter back. Those two men were outstanding in a reserve victory over Oshkosh. Center will still be capably handled with Earl Block and Michie to battle for the position. L. Tate was an understudy at fullback and is only a sophomore. Hill and Harry Zeilinski will have an edge at wing posts.

90 Players on Squad
A group of nearly 90 boys were working out on the variety and frosh squads this fall. The freshmen, on the whole, are rather small, with Robinson the outstanding man. Several players ineligible this season, including Jack Grode, would bolster the squad next year.

A season's review shows that the Bluejays drubbed Clintonville 31 to 0 with the entire squad getting a chance to play. Milwaukee East Division high scored a 21 to 0 victory in the only non-conference game; West DePere edged a 13 to 7 victory in the closing minutes of the game, chiefly because of Connie Berken; New London upset the Bluejays 7 to 2; although Kaukauna was pushed all over the field, the Kaws won 6 to 0 on an intercepted pass and 89 yard run by Peterson; Shawano, conference champion, was held to a nothing to nothing tie, and Neenah was defeated by a 6 to 0 score.

Three Teams Tied for Top in Marathon Loop

Menasha — Three teams of the Marathon girls' bowling league tied for first place with records of 9 and 6 as a result of the bowling at the Hendy alleys last night. They are the Streamliners, Prestix and Snappy Packits. The Parakotes, Coastex and Pak-Aids are tied for second with records of 6 and 9.

A 228 by E. Foth was the high score of the evening followed by a 219 by C. Walbrun. Prestix had games of 591, 680 and 607 to sweep their series with the Parakotes, whose games were 562, 629 and 577. Pak-Aids swept their series with the Streamliners on games of 645, 665 and 647. The Streamliners had games of 584, 635 and 593. Reserve Officer Favors Adequate National Defense

Lieutenant Colonel Boardman Suggests Middle Road Policy

Neenah—Advocating a strong national defense inspired with idealism and implemented with practicalism, Lieutenant Colonel Robert P. Boardman, Oshkosh, reserve officer, told Rotarians Thursday noon at the Valley Inn that if the United States followed this course it would take the leadership of the world.

Following the suggested middle road this country could elevate the world to a higher plane of life, mentally, spiritually and morally, the army officer said, and he added that in his opinion it is the destiny of the country to do this.

"Without a strong national defense, no nation can command respect, but with idealism completed with practicalism in a strong national defense, a nation would not have to be aggressive to lead the world, providing, of course it actuated justice," the officer said.

He advocated retaining democracy, and stated that the United States is the sole repository of a truly democratic government.

Hits Butler Theory
In recommending the middle road policy, the lieutenant colonel discredited General Smedley Butler's extreme isolationism and the complete idealism which prevailed preceding, during and following the World war.

"We went into the World war idealistically, with nothing practical about our entrance. In fact, we went to fight for somebody else and asked nothing for ourselves," he claimed. "Then a treaty was signed which sewed the soil of Europe with dragon teeth, and they are reaping the harvest today."

"After the war we swung toward a materialistic and cynical attitude, the stay at home policy. But it is fallacious to say that a nation can live sufficiently onto itself," he explained.

He compared the United States navy and army with that of European powers, and said the American forces are not only below those of foreign countries but the minimum required by the National Defense act and therefore inadequate.

Charge Old Age Pension Funds Used for Liquor

Winnebago County Supervisors Ask Closer Investigation of Dependents

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh—Reports of the activities of their departments for 1937 were given this morning before the Winnebago county board by R. C. Heffernan, county agent, and Miss Helen Briggs, county home demonstration agent.

Discussion was continued this morning on the county clerk's report of old age assistance rendered with charges noted against cities and townships. "In defense of L. M. Howman, J. F. Shea, board chairman said, 'I wish to say the state is willing to pay 80 per cent of old age pensions if the county can show cause.'" Chairman Shea stated Howman had been successful in getting practically all of the 80 per cent.

Waste Funds on Liquor

Cases were cited by C. O. Allen, Oshkosh, Frank Bartlett, town of Winland, R. M. Howman, Menasha; Henry Schultz, Neenah, and J. N. Howe, Oshkosh, tending to show closer investigation by the county pension department was needed. Many cases of pensioners alleged to have spent funds on liquor were given. Supervisor Howe stated in Green Lake county nearly 50 per cent of the pensioners are in charge of a guardian.

C. O. Allen cited a case of a pensioner who received $12 a month and was found reduced to eating raw carrots for meals. "While I know the investigation is a tremendous job," Allen said, "I feel I am justified in making this complaint." He cited a case of two single men living one block from each other who were getting $12 and $19 a month respectively. He stated the only difference he could see in the men was the $19 per month man could drink more whiskey than the other."

T. C. Cotter, Oshkosh, member of the poor committee, told the board that when the old age pension was instituted there were 235 and they received an average of $12. With the many new applicants, he stated, it would require much time to adjust all the cases.

May Become Serious
In making his report, County Agent Heffernan stated the situation in regard to Bang's disease in Winnebago county may become serious. He advocated Winnebago county farmers conforming with the state program which requires signatures of 75 per cent so as to pass department of agriculture regulations.

Miss Briggs stated the county 4-H club work done in 1937 was the most successful since instituted and said 14 4-H clubs had secured a 100 per cent rating. The board accepted both reports.

Before adjournment this noon, C. A. Korotev, Neenah, informed members of the board an "iron lung" to be installed in Theda Clark hospital was now on display in Menasha and was one of three in the state. Purchase of the "iron lung" was made possible through efforts of the Neenah Kiwanis club, he said.

Menasha Buddies Greeted News of Armistice With Mixed Emotions

Menasha—Knee deep in quagmire was W. C. Friedland, 310 Chute street, 19 years ago yesterday in a woods about three miles back of Verdun and when the men in that 107th ammunition train, 57th Field Artillery brigade, heard the news of the armistice, they couldn't believe it and celebrated quietly. Mr. Friedland took off his shoes for the first time since Sept. 29 of that year and, he said when interviewed yesterday, "what was left of my stockings came off with the shoes."

"Nineteen years ago this morning, let me see. . .," said Neenah and Menasha war veterans yesterday as they remembered back across the years to that first Armistice day which was observed yesterday in Menasha and Neenah.

Sam Dickens was with the 120th Field artillery stationed at Epponville, France, and when he and his buddies heard the news of the signing of the armistice, they too celebrated quietly because it seemed incredible.

With the Forty-second division was Floyd Day, another Menasha veteran, and those Americans celebrated the end of the war with "lots of excitement."

Needed Sleep

"We went to bed for some much needed sleep," said Art Hill, Menasha, who was in the front line in the Meuse Argonne when word came through at 10 o'clock that morning 19 years ago that armistice had been signed.

Mike Mattern, Broad street, was in the Sudan and their objective had been about reached when word came of the end of the war but he and his soldier comrades didn't believe it until that night when wires were built and the soldiers "had the best celebration we've ever had."

On shore leave in Brest from the U. S. S. Seattle was Fred Picard, Menasha, when the word came through that the armistice had been signed and the sailor boys celebrated in style.

"The boys whooped it up" in the Black Hawk division in a camp near Bourdeaux, France when word came through that the war was over according to P. J. Gazecki who was a member of that Eighty-sixth division.

Asleep in Box Car

Beating of tin pans and French cries that meant "the Bosh are all done" awakened Fred Bentzen Nov. 11, 1918, where he was sleeping in a box car having been in charge of gas masks to the front lines near where the famous Sept. 26 drive had taken place.

Along an old plank road, three miles from Monte Fautante was C. B. Anderson when word came through about the armistice but he and his soldier comrades heard the news two days before Nov. 11 but did not know that the armistice would go into effect 72 hours later, 11 o'clock Nov. 11.

Fred Rosenthal was in a hospital about 15 kilometers out of Bourdeaux, France, recuperating from an arm wound when the armistice news arrived. With several others, he caught a ride on a truck to the village to celebrate but in jumping off the truck, he fell and opened the arm wound, deferring his homeward trip about three weeks.

Dr. G. N. Ducklow was disappointed at the time when he heard news of the armistice for he was stationed at Pelham Bay near New York City awaiting a call to go overseas but Ray Vandewalker was glad for he was recovering from wounds at Camp Lee, West Va., having been returned to U. S. several months previous because of the "snicks."

Fred Bronsdon, 169 Main street, who was a member of the first army of General Pershing and the last soldier to come home to the Twin Cities, was in the very front line trenches at Avacourt when he received word of the armistice.

Eliminate War Profits to Get Peace, Minister Says

Neenah—Commemoration of Armistice day must culminate in a powerful influence to perpetuate peace, the Rev. Samuel Roth, pastor, St. Paul's English Lutheran church, told members of the Who's New club at the Twin City Y. W. C. A. Thursday afternoon as the club held an Armistice day program. The speaker declared that elimination of profits from war, adoption of and strict adherence to a policy of neutrality combined with the Christian teachings of "love thy neighbor . . . for as much as ye have done unto them, so do you to Me," are fundamentals necessary to the maintenance of peace in the world.

Deriding war-time hysteria and the terrible propaganda of one country about the other, the Rev. Roth urged improvement of collective relationships so that nations lose the bitter hatreds and instead, understand and aid each other for the betterment of civilization.

"War is hell anyway you look at it," said the Rev. Mr. Roth. Eliminating profits and placing an equal burden of war on all strikes at the very heart of war and could do much to insure peace.

"Nations must learn to get along together and to do that they must learn to 'swallow a lot.' In our search for peace, we must be willing to pay the price of peace. If we seek peace we can find it, for people generally find what they look for."

Discussion Helps

The Rev. Mr. Roth advocated conferences to delay war stating that he believed that discussion of problems help to lessen the problem.

"War settles nothing," he contended, and after nations have drenched the earth with the blood of its choice sons, what have they gained? Why can't problems be settled before that happens. It isn't necessary to tell you about the great expense of war although I believe the press could do much to present information of war costs and what war means so that people would have a conception of what war really means.

"Too, we must stop glorifying war to our children. We must learn about people for the more one gets to know them, the more admiration he has for them.

"I hope that the time may come when the comparatively few men who declare war will no longer have that power, that war declaration will be put to the vote of the people. Let them decide whether we shall enter into something that is wasteful in morality and manhood, in money and in progress."

Senior, Junior Cagers in Tilt For Class Title

Both Squads Have Won 2 Games in Tourney at Neenah High School

Neenah—The Seniors and the Juniors are battling it out this afternoon for the championship in the Neenah High school class basketball tournament. Both teams have won two games, while the freshmen and the sophomores, also clashing this afternoon, have lost two games.

The seniors trimmed the sophomores Thursday afternoon, 21 to 13. Krueger paced the seniors to their victory, scoring nine of the team's points. He sank four field goals and a free throw. Bunker helped and a free throw, with two field goals and a gift shot. Christofferson and Hesselman were tied for honors for the sophomores, each netting two field goals.

The juniors won their second game when they tripped the freshmen, 26 to 13, with W. Ketterling leading the way with four baskets. Peterson and Bentzen each sank two baskets. B. Ketterling and Graham led the sophomores, each getting two field goals.

...SO I'M BACK TO SCRUBBING AND BOILING AGAIN—TILL WE CAN AFFORD A NEW, UP-TO-DATE WASHER!

Stop blaming that old washing machine because your clothes come out dingy and gray! For now there is an astonishing new laundry soap that literally "works miracles" in washers, both old and new!

By simply switching to it, you'll see white clothes come 4 to 5 shades whiter—in 25% to 40% less time. And you'll agree with the thousands of women who say results make it seem "like getting a new washer free!"

This amazing soap—OXYDOL—was developed by the makers of gentle Ivory soap . . . and works on an utterly new principle. It soaks out dirt while the washer is running—you get double action wash! You save wear and tear on clothes, cut electricity bills—because you don't run the washer so long.

In tub washing, OXYDOL saves back-breaking scrubbing and boiling. You soak clothes just 15 minutes to the tubful, and white clothes wash 4 to 5 shades whiter than with less modern soaps. Even "grimiest" spots come white with a few quick rubs.

Yet OXYDOL is so safe that every washable color comes out brilliant, fresh! Even sheer cotton prints washed 100 consecutive times in OXYDOL suds, showed no perceptible sign of fading.

OXYDOL is economical, too. Tests against popular package soaps show that, cup for cup, and under identical washing conditions, Oxydol gives 28% to 60% MORE SUDS! Oxydol from your dealer today. Procter & Gamble. Tested and Approved by Good Housekeeping Institute

In Kaw Marker

APPLETON and Kaukauna High school football teams closed the 1937 season here yesterday afternoon with the annual Armistice day game, and with Appleton winning by a 27 to 6 count, which was more or less expected.

Badly outgunned by the Terror regulars, Kaukauna was no match during most of the first half and the first few minutes of the third quarter. But when the big fellows left, Chuck Sample along with them, the Kaw youngsters played the Terror on even terms and late in the fourth period tossed passes until they finally clicked on one and scored.

For the Kaws, the standout performer when totting the ball was Bill Peterson who showed himself a fine open field runner and there were several times when he engineered liberal grabs of yardage. Giordana showed as a nice defensive back and when he got his chance in the fourth period he turned in some clever open field running and then flipped a lateral to McCormick who failed.

Appleton again showed that it depends greatly on Chuck Sample. When he was in the ball game the Terror was a good team capable of almost anything on offense and defense. However, when Charley reposed on the bench the locals weren't so hot. In other words the big fellow is the difference between a good team and an ordinary one.

Both teams used substitutes in great numbers, 27 boys seeing action at various times for the Terror and more than 20 for Kaukauna. Besides, they were shuttled in and out of the game so often it was hard to keep track of them.

The game was the last for 14 Appleton boys who showed during the afternoon. They were Edward Arndt, guard; Laverne Bergner, end; Ralph Colvin, end; Arnold Harmsen, tackle; Lawrence Hebler, center; Russ Kenny, guard; Don Mueller, tackle; Junior Olsson, tackle; Alfred Oliver, back; George Riedl, back; Lee Springer, guard; Lloyd Thompson, back; Roland

Next Fall

Waukesha — Carroll's freshman team brought its football season to a close this week, victorious in three straight encounters. Freshman Coach Vince Batha, and Coach Elmer Lampy will announce the numerous winners next week.

Several outstanding prospects have been uncovered to fill the gaps which will be left open by the graduation of 13 seniors from Carroll's varsity team. Coach Batha has been particularly impressed with the showing of his linemen.

In the backfield, Ned Demming, New London, looks like a possible successor to Art Buck, sensational quarterback with the undefeated Pioneer varsity. Demming is rapidly rounding into shape and has pleased Coach Lampy with his open field running and ability to follow interference effectively.

Members of the 1937 freshman team were: Robert Jacobson, Vicksburg, Miss.; Albert Farina, Beloit; Kenneth Mantz, Milwaukee; Walter Schmitt, Pewaukee; Harold Auschütz, Milwaukee; Albert Novara, Milwaukee; Robert Griffith, Cuba City; Bill Solimen, Eagle River; Arthur Reid, Escobedo; Edward Albright, Milwaukee; John Hoffer, Marinette; Clifford Morgan, Janesville; Henry Alhusser, Shawano; Edwin Demming, New London; William Werham, West Frankfort, Ill.; Paul Guten, Milwaukee; Sidney Alford, Beloit; Charles Pearson, Milwaukee; Edward Zibell, Waterloo; Fred Alexander, Milwaukee; Melvin Glocke, New London; Mike Secker, Milwaukee; Gordon Case, Green Bay; Ray Miller, Portage; Bill McNulty, Waukesha; Arthur Quanta, Chicago; Arthur Hentz, Milwaukee; Robert Callaway, La Crosse; Jack Jones, Villa Park, Ill.; Ted Jones, Lake Mills; Kenneth Kolberg, Juneau; Allan Schultz, Milwaukee; Charles Matheson, Milwaukee; Donald Schuster, Denmark; Kermit Johnson, Waukegan; John McDermott, Pewaukee, and Harold Claus, West Bend.

KAUKAUNA HIGH BAND PARADES AT GRID GAME

Three musical organizations featured during the odd moments of the Kaukauna-Appleton High school football game yesterday afternoon at George A. Whiting field of Lawrence college. Appleton High school band represented the Terror, the Kaukauna High school band the Galloping Ghosts while the Onyx Johnson post drum and bugle corps added an Armistice day touch to the affair. Whitewater to

In Crucial TiltBoth Teams Undefeated.
Tied for First in Teachers'
Conference

By the Associated Press
WHITWATER and Milwaukee Teachers college football teams, undefeated in sectional conference competition, clash in Milwaukee tomorrow with southern division of the Wisconsin circuit crown at stake.

The teams are tied for first place with three wins each. Tomorrow's engagement winds up the season. Whitewater is favored on the basis of a more impressive season than the Milwaukeeans. In three games the Gulls have scored 60 points while holding opponents to two. Milwaukee has counted 42 points and had 20 points scored against it by the same opponents that faced Whitewater.

Superior rests on top in the northern division with three wins and no losses, but La Crosse, with two wins and one tie, has claimed the championship, charging Superior cancelled a scheduled game, thereby forfeiting to La Crosse. Superior claims it offered to play the game at an earlier date, but was refused.

In other Teachers' conference games Saturday Oshkosh meets Plattville on the latter's field, and River Falls is at Stout Institute.

Beloit travels to Chicago to meet the Maroons while Carroll, undefeated, takes on Wheaton college at Wheaton, Ill., and St. Norbert's college plays at De Pere, Wis., against Michigan Tech. All Wisconsin liberal art schools will play their final games Saturday.

In another upset Ralph Greenleaf, 15 times world title-holder and defending champion, was defeated by Andrew Ponzi, Philadelphia.

George Black Favored
Over Rankin Tonight

Milwaukee — George Black, Milwaukee light heavyweight who is rated the fifth best in his division in the world today, returns to the ring wars at the Milwaukee Auditorium tonight to meet Oscar Rankin, west coast Negro, in the 10 round main event of Matchmaker Brothhood's card.

With three straight victories over such outstanding fighters as Young Jack Gibbons, Babe Risko and Irish Bob Turner to his credit, Black will be gunning for No. 4 tonight over the hard punching Negro fighter who stopped him in a fight at the Auditorium a year ago last New Year's day.

Despite the fact Rankin holds a knockout victory over him, Black has been made a 7 to 5 choice by the bookmakers who figure Black has improved so greatly in the last year that he is a better fighter than Rankin today.

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

Just a few more guesses about
Saturday's football games:

Pitt-Nebraska: The Panthers won the game they wanted when they trounced Notre Dame last week, but there still is a little matter of a possible re-bid to Pasadena. That ought to be motive to carry Dr. John Bain Sutherland's pupils past this dangerous hurdle, Pitt.

Army-Notre Dame: Notre Dame has come through a gruelling schedule with high honor—and a couple of defeats and a tie. Army is on the rise but a needed horseshoe or two to get past Harvard. The nod, faint though it may be, goes to Notre Dame.

Minnesota-Northwestern: The Gophers can forget about the national championship this year, but they still can snare an undisputed Big Ten crown out of the wreckage. This won't be easy, but we like Minnesota.

Oregon-California: The scoreless draw with Washington indicated there was a touch of gilt about the Golden Bears. This trip into the far north may spell more trouble, but the ballot goes to California.

Rice-Texas A. and M.: Rice is the perfect illustration of the futility of figures. The Owls couldn't score a point in their first three games and now have pushed over Texas, Auburn and Arkansas in succession. Maybe this is where the Owls get off, but they get the ballot just the same.

Alabama-Georgia Tech: On its good days, Tech is liable to smear anyone (ask Vanderbilt) but this corner strings along with Alabama. Duke-North Carolina: This virtually decides the Southern conference title and the vote goes to Duke.

Dartmouth-Cornell: One of the most hazardous of all occupations is to bet against Dartmouth, whose speed merchants always are dangerous. Nevertheless, this corner, liking an occasional long shot, takes Cornell.

Columbia-Syracuse: More to be pitied than scorned is Columbia, whose luck has been mostly bad. Just the same there's no selection possible here but Syracuse.

Yale-Princeton: Hard to see how Yale can lose this.

Penn-Michigan: Probably close.

Penn State-Maryland: Two good clubs collide here. Defering to the home team, Penn State.

Boston College-Kentucky: With-out much conviction, Boston college. Brown-Holy Cross: Holy Cross. Bucknell-Temple: Always bitterly fought. Temple.

New York University-Georgetown: Unpredictable New York U. is the choice.

Ohio State-Illinois: Spilled by Indiana, Ohio State can concentrate on squaring a few old scores in this one. Ohio State.

Iowa-Indiana: Indiana.

Wisconsin-Purdue: Difficult to pick. So much so that the coin comes out of hiding, spins and says... Wisconsin.

Michigan State-Carnegie: Out of the hat, Michigan State.

Kansas-Kansas State: Don't know just what has bitten these Jay-hawks, but they're hot. Kansas.

Missouri-Oklahoma: Even-Stephen, Oklahoma.

Southern Methodist-Baylor: Baylor ought to get back on the rails in this one.

Texas-Texas Christian: The Christians seem to be coming apart as the seams as a result of a brutal schedule, but get the call here.

Georgia-Tulane: Maybe the Bulldogs will wake up, but until they do—Tulane.

Louisiana State-Auburn: The plansmen seem to save most of their ammunition for Southeastern conference foes, but here's a tough one for them to chew on. Auburn, with plenty of misgivings.

Tennessee-Vanderbilt: It's against the rules to do any arduous dodging, so, for better or worse, Vanderbilt.

Southern California-Oregon State: The Trojans can't lose them all (or can they?). Southern California.

Stanford-Washington State: The form chart points to Stanford.

Washington-U. C. L. A.: On an exceedingly blind stab, Washington.

Santa Clara-St. Mary's: Ought to be grounds for suit if Santa Clara doesn't win.

Colorado-Colorado College: In which Whizzer White goes after a few more touchdowns. Colorado.

INDIVIDUAL leaders in the National Football league remain unchanged with one exception during the past week of play according to statistics announced today. The only change saw Bill Shepherd, Detroit and Western Maryland, oust Ward Cuff, New York and Marquette, as the longest field goal kicked of the season. Shepherd booted a 45 yard placement against Cleveland, which was three yards better than Cuff's mark set the week before.

Clark Hinkle, Green Bay and Bucknell back, widened his margin as the leading point getter and now has 53 points, eight more than Earl (Dutch) Clark, playing-coach of the Detroit Lions, who won scoring honors in 1935 and 1936. Hinkle also continues third among the leading ground gainers with 387 yards in 101 attempts.

Cliff Battles of Boston and W. Virginia Wesleyan, although inactive, maintains his position as leading ground gainer with 507 yards in 122 attempts for an average of 4.1. His closest rival is George Grosvenor of the Chicago Cardinals, who is 49 yards behind him. Tuffy Leemans, New York and George Washington, who led the ground gainers last fall finally broke into the select circle and with 310 yards gained is eighth among the leaders.

Bob Monnett, Green Bay and Michigan States, is still ahead of Slingin' Sam Baugh in passing efficiency. Monnett's 28 completions in 55 attempts gives him 50 per cent efficiency as compared to Baugh's 47 per cent with 56 completions in 118 attempts. The most remarkable feature of the passing race is that seven passers have marks of 43 per cent or better including Arnie Herber, Green Bay ace who set a new mark last fall, and now has a record of 44 per cent.

Don Hutson of Green Bay and Alabama came close to overtaking Gaynell Tinsley of the Cardinals and L.S.U. in the pass catching race. Hutson, who made a record of 34 catches last fall, has now caught 26, only two less than Tinsley. Both players seem certain to surpass the 1936 record.

THURSDAY SCORE
East 33, West 6.

Green Bay—Green Bay East High school football team closed the Fox River Valley conference race last night as undefeated champion when it downed Green Bay West, 33 to 6, before a crowd of about 9,000 persons. East scored early in the opening period, repeated in the second period, scored twice in the third and once in the fourth. West threatened a couple times but lacked the punch. It scored in the final period against East's reserves.

MARINETTE BEATEN
Menominee, Mich. — A record-breaking crowd of upwards of 10,000 persons jammed Walton Blesch field and surrounding rooftops here yesterday to witness Menominee High crumble the hopes of Marinette by a 13 to 8 victory in their annual Armistice day grid classic. It was the eighteenth win for the Maroons in the team's colorful rivalry dating back to 1893.

Marinette's touchdown came in the middle of the second quarter after a series of first downs brought the ball deep in Maroon territory. A long pass, Schellhorn to Laabs, was snatched on the Maroon 10-yard line and the receiver raced over the goal for a marker.

The kick for the extra point was wide. Menominee started scoring in the first part of the third quarter.

Here's Ed Conroy, Chicago 150-pounder, who will oppose Hans Ahl, Oshkosh, in one of the windup bouts of Onyx Johnston post's card at Army G next Thursday evening. Conroy is an Irisher and while only 18 years old and with only 19 fights to his credit, he looks like a pro, according to Jabber Young, Chicago, formerly of Menasha, who handles the lad. He boxes all the old timers around Jabber's Chicago gym and the former Menashan assures that he'll give Ahl a merry evening. Seven bouts are on the evening's program.

Animated Wildcat
Will be Presented
By Minnesota Band

Minneapolis — The University of Minneapolis band boys came out of a huddle today with a new "look formation" they said has their football mates' stuff backed off the field.

Gerald Prescott, director of university bands, announced the Gopher marching band will slide from a snappy military lineup into an animated cartoon of a wildcat—with sound effects—to honor Northwest. University fans here tomorrow for the Gophers' homecoming football game.

The wildcat will drop its ears, roll its eyes and twitch its whiskers for the more than 63,000 persons expected to jam the stadium. A wave of the baton and the animal will snarl—with the band's brass stop wide open.

Sixty men have been added to the organization to make the display complete, bringing the personnel to 160.

The extravaganza is the result of hours of precision drill on a regulation gridiron marked on the Mississippi river bottom flats near the campus. Prescott worked out the plan on paper, timed the movements of each man to the rhythm of the music and then diagrammed the "play" in chalk talks to the band.

Chilton — Chilton High school gridgers annexed the Eastern Wisconsin conference championship for the second successive time by defeating Plymouth High school, 7-0, on the new Chilton football field Thursday afternoon before about 1,500 people, the largest crowd in local football history. The game capped homecoming activities which began with a snake dance and bonfire Wednesday evening.

Chilton demonstrated its superiority by crossing the Plymouth goal line in the first quarter and threatening three times during the second half. Plymouth presented a stubborn defense but its offensive machine failed to function. It was Plymouth's first defeat in conference competition.

GREEN BAY — Six consecutive victories safely tucked away, the Green Bay Packers concluded practice today for their game with the Philadelphia Eagles at 2 p. m. Sunday on the State Fair park gridiron in Milwaukee.

It will be the Packers' last league game in the middle-west, and the Eagles final contest of the season. Advance ticket sales and the promise of good weather indicate a large crowd, with the usual delegations from Green Bay and other Wisconsin and upper Michigan cities in attendance.

First Eastern Opponent
Philadelphia, fresh from a 14 to 10 win over Coach Folsy Clark's Dodgers at Brooklyn, will arrive in Milwaukee Saturday to be the first eastern opponent Green Bay has encountered this year. Coached by Bert Bell, the Eagles have steadily improved this season and in their finale have a perfect opportunity to upset the title directed Packer apple cart.

Former college teammates will oppose each other in the game. Emmett Moriell of Appleton, Wis., will be in the Eagles' backfield while Eddie Jankowski, Milwaukee boy, will perform behind the Packer line. They played with the University of Wisconsin varsity together. Also one-time members of the same outfit are Art Buss of Philadelphia and Bobby Monnett of Green Bay. Buss, former Bear lineman, played tackle at Michigan State the same time that Monnett was lugging the ball.

Two of the greatest right ends in the game, Bill Hewitt, who gained fame with the Bears, and Milt Gantenbein will meet as captains of the Eagles and Packers respectively.

Clubs had complained of damage one because players used too many balls. Another action of the meeting which saw the reelection as president of George R. Jacobus, Ridge-wood, N. Gophers Have Chance At Big 10 Grid Title

Victory Over Northwestern Tomorrow Will Help
PURDUE IS READY
Kicking, Passing Feature Final Boiler-Maker Drill

CHICAGO —(12)—The gridiron fans who play the favorites and those who like longer odds will have about an even choice on tomorrow's Western conference gridiron program.

Minnesota's Gophers are scheduled to start hauling up the title pennant with a win over crippled Northwestern: Chicago is slated to win its first game of the season by nosing out Beloit and Indiana is favored to whip Iowa. On the long-shot side, Illinois is rated a chance of defeating Ohio State and Michigan may defeat Pennsylvania. The Purdue-Wisconsin battle shapes up as a toss-up.

Gophers Confident
Minnesota, in a final hard drill yesterday, polished its offense, confident of averting its 1937 upset by the Wildcats, who were scheduled to drill in Memorial stadium at Minneapolis during the day.

Northwestern's line is riddled by injury and Minnesota's power is expected to carry the Gophers into the final tilt—against Wisconsin—an undefeated eleven in Big Ten competition.

Iowa's chances against Indiana grew dim as Bob Allen, regular guard, suffered an injury in a final scrimmage, Indiana, which worked out today at Cedar Rapids en route to Iowa City, may be without the services of Jack Kenderdine, veteran end, who is nursing an injured ankle.

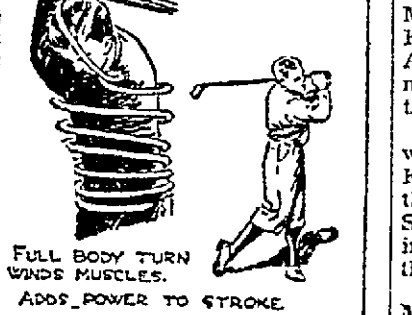

Tough Game at Madison
Purdue polished off for Wisconsin with a kicking and passing drill and anticipated a tough game with the Badgers at Madison. Wisconsin looked good against the freshmen and the squad, idle last Saturday will be in top shape for the Boiler-makers.

Thirty-four Wolverines were heading toward Philadelphia. Michigan stressed passing in a final drill before starting east and Coach Harry Kipke was optimistic over his team's chances against Penn.

Illinois concentrated its defense against passes, while Ohio State, preparing for its final home game, indicated that razzle-dazzle plays might be used frequently in an effort to down the improving Illini. Chicago's reserves scrimmaged against the freshmen and the second stringers will start against Beloit.

GRAPHIC GOLF

BY BEST BALL

THE WIND-UP

The position of the golfer to the left above is one of being all wound up but with a definite place to go. This body turn has been made in orthodox fashion so that at the point illustrated here the back is presented to the hole the eyes are looking straight down at the ball showing there has been a minimum of lateral shifting. The fact that the golfer's left arm is bent in this picture should not lead the observer to believe that it has been bent all through the stroke. In fact at the start of the stroke it was extended in the same manner as prescribed by the pros. At the top of the stroke the tension often becomes so great from maintaining the straight left that the golfer must be allowed to take the club further back or to allow it to dip below the horizontal. From such a position it is possible to start the left arm pulling it down on the downswing by a turn of the left hip and provided that it straightens before impact will approximate the same groove taken in the upstroke.

Other things being equal it is the golfer with the most power who gets the greatest distance. To get the most of one's shot it is advisable to make the stroke in such a way that the muscles of the body are fully utilized. It will not be necessary to pack all your energy into each shot but the fact you have this power at your command, when you want it will give you an assurance that will fortify your game mentally as well as physically.

Mystery Golfer, Babe Ruth In Exhibition Golf Match

NEW YORK —(12)—That big guy is back again. You must have known him. His name is Ruth, George Norman (Babe) Ruth, and for nearly 20 years he was the best known and greatest baseballer in the business.

It is strange that the first turnstile tickler of the game comes back to the sport headlines not as manager of a major league team, but as a member of a golf foursome. That is what will play for charity at Fresh Meadow in Flushing, L. I., Sunday.

Three other notables will play with the big fellow: Mystery John Montague, the legendary California clouter, and Mrs. Sylvia Annenberg will pair against the Babe and another "babe," the wiry Miss Didrickson.

Babe Predicts Battle
There is a lot of interest in the other three, but it all comes back to the big fellow. As soon as he hit town yesterday he went out to Fresh Meadow for a practice round. He had, he said, been tracking bear, deer and assorted wild life in the north woods for about 12 miles a day, but he was ready, or would be after a little practice, to give Montague the battle of his life.

If the legends from Hollywood are true, Montague outclasses the Babe. But the big guy from the time he came up from Baltimore, a portly left-hander, until the day when, lefty and tired, he reached the end of the big league trail always "had it" in the tough ones.

If he were as good a golfer as he was a ball player there wouldn't be any search for a "second Bobby Jones." But his putting isn't up to pro standards, and when he turns on the power his drives don't stay true. He has no delusions about his ability.

Yet there are a lot of big league pitchers still around who aren't the least bit sentimental but who will volunteer the information that the Babe is at his best when big things are expected of him. That's what made him a great ball player and that's what may make him, for a day at least, a great golfer.

Three M. U. Regulars Return for Iowa State

Milwaukee —(12)—Marquette and Iowa State took to the practice field today for final workouts before tomorrow's homecoming battle in the Hilltop stadium.

Marquette's chances for a victory after defeat in the last four games were brightened by the return of three injured regulars to uniform.

They were Ed Niemi, Ironwood, Mich., center; Mike Czerniecki, Kalamazoo, Mich., left guard, and Andy Bakula, Milwaukee, sophomore back. The trio has been inactive all week.

Coach Jim Yager arrived today with his Iowa gridder, Everett Kischer, his star back and one of the outstanding passers in the Big Six conference, has recovered from injuries and will be ready to take the field against Marquette.

It Happened On the Gridiron

In 1932, U. C. L. A. trailed Oregon, 6-7, with 30 seconds to play. U. C. L. A. quarterback Mike Frankovich intercepted an Oregon pass on the U. C. L. A. 7-yard line. He had presence of mind to call time out for a huddle. When the play started, Mike faded behind his own goal, passed to Ranson Livesey on the 35. Livesey ran 65 yards for the winning touchdown as the gun sounded. — By William Henry Spaulding, U. C. L. A.

Grange for Change In Grid Pass Rule

Proposes Adjustment to Speed Up College Football Games

Chicago —(12)—College football, Red Grange believes, should "quit being stubborn and take a tip from the professionals."

"I see where some coaches are worrying about defense being so good that the game is slowing down," said the famous, one-time galloping ghost of Illinois today. "and I think they have something to worry about if they persist on refusing to make one simple rule change just because we pros are using it."

"Too many scoreless ties. Too many dull games," he continued. "One rule adjustment would take care of them — allow the college players — to pass from anywhere back of the line of scrimmage as we do, instead of not closer to the line than five yards."

Grange, whose radio work, business affairs and duties as assistant coach of the Chicago Bears has prevented him from seeing a single "big" game this season, nevertheless has been following the college sport closely through the newspapers. He thinks the number of "dull" games is on the increase.

Youth of America Must Find Answer To World Troubles

Rising Generation Faces Great Responsibility, Legionnaires Told

New London—Climaxing a speaking itinerary before 4,000 high school students the Rev. R. R. Holliday, state chaplain of the American Legion, addressed about 250 grown-ups at the Armistice day banquet of the American Legion Norris-Spencer post at the club-house last night. The banquet crowd taxed the capacity of the lounge.

Declaring that the rising generation of today will inherit the greatest responsibility in American history, that of solving the problems of the entire world, the Rev. Mr. Holliday stressed the education of youth for peace, a timely topic during the observance of National Education week.

He pointed to the work of the American Legion in teaching the principles of peace and dwelt on the purpose for the original organization of the legion. This, he said, was to carry out the ideals of democracy in civilian life which the soldiers in France visualized in the trenches during the war.

The military power of the United States keeps America safe from the danger of war, the speaker said, and pointed out the platform of the legion advocating an adequate defense program for the nation. War has not been denounced, he declared, but the declaration of war, as exemplified by present day hostilities.

Talks At Fond du Lac The state chaplain yesterday spoke to senior and junior high school students at Fond du Lac and North Fond du Lac in the morning, and junior and senior high school students here at Washington High school yesterday afternoon.

George Fuerst, post commander, was unable to attend the banquet and in his stead, Dr. M. A. Borchardt, past commander of the post, introduced and explained the work of the legion. C. H. Kellogg acted as toastmaster.

Others honored guests introduced by Kellogg were Mrs. D. B. Egan, president of the legion auxiliary; Mrs. Louis Kurzevski, gold star mother; Mrs. L. J. Manske, past-president of the auxiliary and past department officer; Mr. Manske, past county commander; Mrs. A. Borchardt; Barbara VanAlstine, president of the junior auxiliary; and Glen Smith, of the Sons of the American Legion.

The entertainment program was presented during the dinner. Dancing concluded the activities.

Lawyer Advocates Vote of People on War Declaration

Citizens of United States Want Peace, Melchior Tells V. F. W.

New London — Preaching preparedness and the right to declare war by vote of the people instead of congress, Attorney Walter Melchior last night addressed nearly 250 members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and their guests at the annual Armistice day banquet at the clubrooms.

By an overwhelming majority the people of the United States demand peace he declared, and though they object to wars of any circumstances, they are ready to fight to a man if invasion threatens our shores. The right to declare war should rest with the people themselves, by a referendum vote, instead of with congress, Melchior advised. If the lives and happiness of American mothers and fathers and sons is ignored by American diplomats and statesmen who would plunge the nation into another war, the declaration of war by ballot is inevitable, he prophesied.

W. T. Comstock acted as toastmaster at the banquet and the Rev. F. S. Dayton conducted the invocation. Post Commander Leonard Borchardt was introduced and H. H. Helms, superintendent of schools, spoke briefly on the program of national education week which is being observed this week. The entertainment program followed the dinner and the evening concluded with dancing.

Points to Significance That people are losing sight of the significance of Armistice day and that America should look with concern to her democracy, was the warning of Judge A. M. Scheller of Waupaca at the 11 o'clock morning program of the V. F. W. for the public at the Grand theater.

He deplored the small attendance at the theater program and pointed to the dwindling interest down the years since the first armistice. While banquet programs of two veterans' organizations were crowded last evening the main auditorium of the theater was only half-filled for the morning program. Most stores and business places closed at 11 o'clock and high school was dismissed at that hour.

Peace can be maintained by an intelligent people by compromise, the judge offered, and citizens should exercise their right to vote to preserve democracy that the boys in France have not died in vain.

Kimberly Postmaster Is Planning Jobless Census

Kimberly—Cards for the national unemployment census will be distributed in every home in the village Monday, according to an announcement made by Postmaster George A. Sauter. From Tuesday to Friday inclusive, beginning at 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 8 o'clock in the evening, an assistant will be in the council room at the village hall and at the post office to give the registrant help in filling out the cards.

All persons over the age of 16 who are not already carefully employed are being asked to fill out the report. Completed cards must be mailed before midnight Saturday of next week. The census is for women as well as for men. The data are to be used solely for the purpose of the census and persons filling out the reports need not fear that their names will be made public.

The Fleur-de-Lis club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Clara La Berge, Tuesday evening. Schafkopf was played and prizes were awarded to Mrs. Frank Courchane, first; Mrs. Ben Couillard, second and traveling. Next week the club will meet at the home of Mrs. Emma Pocan, Appleton.

The Booster club dance committee has announced that another club dance will be held Jan. 7 at the clubhouse. Modern and old time dancing will be featured. Henry Vander Boegard is chairman of the committee.

"The Valiant," a tragedy, will be presented in the one-act play contest of the Little Nine conference, Monday evening at Seymour, under the auspices of the Little Nine conference.

In a comparison he brought out the evils of a dictatorship. The high school band played for the morning program and W. T. Comstock acted as master of ceremonies. The invocation was given by the Rev. A. W. Sneehey. The song "My Buddy" was sung by William Eggers in uniform and dramatized with several others in full soldiers' regalia. The fallen buddy was played by Leonard Borchardt; the war nurse by Mrs. Ed Meinhardt; stretcher bearers by Will Runge and Martin Abraham. Mrs. Irma Clapper was at the piano. The stage sentinel was Stanley Christian.

Kimberly Postmaster Is Planning Jobless Census

Kimberly—Cards for the national unemployment census will be distributed in every home in the village Monday, according to an announcement made by Postmaster George A. Sauter. From Tuesday to Friday inclusive, beginning at 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 8 o'clock in the evening, an assistant will be in the council room at the village hall and at the post office to give the registrant help in filling out the cards.

All persons over the age of 16 who are not already carefully employed are being asked to fill out the report. Completed cards must be mailed before midnight Saturday of next week. The census is for women as well as for men. The data are to be used solely for the purpose of the census and persons filling out the reports need not fear that their names will be made public.

Eastern Division Play Contest Next Monday Evening

Conference Competition to Be Presented at Seymour School

Seymour—The elimination play contest for the Eastern division of the Little Nine conference will be held at Seymour on Monday evening. Kimberly, Wrightstown and Seymour are the contestants and each will present a one-act tragedy. Formerly the plays given were comedies, but this year the coaches decided to present tragedies because the acting is of a more difficult nature.

Seymour's play, entitled "Smoke-screen," concerns Katy, the suspected murderer, a detective and a dope fiend. An arrest is necessary so the detective attempts to have Katy frame the murder on Smoke, the dope fiend. She consents but instead of the police trap closing in on Smoke, it closes on the real criminal.

This conference will be very interesting as Kimberly conference champions, have always presented fine plays as has Wrightstown. A large crowd is expected to attend this contest on Monday evening here in Seymour.

A soil conservation meeting will be held in the city hall at Seymour at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. There will be a discussion of farm programs and an election of the community committee will take place. The present committee for the towns of Seymour and Osborn is composed of Herbert Tubbs, chairman, Robert Gosse, Irvin Schmidt, and Otto Mielke. Farmers are urged to attend this meeting.

Francis Leisgang, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leisgang, route 3, Seymour, was elected president of the student body of Ripon college by a vote of the senior class. Leisgang has been active for four years in oratory and debate and was on the victorious team of 1936, which defeated Illinois Normal to take the sectional championship. He is the president of Pi Kappa Delta, national honorary forensic fraternity, and has won the highest honor in debate, a ruby and diamond set in the gold key.

Besides the office of student president, Leisgang is president of Delta Sigma Psi, local social fraternity, and was recently named chairman of the student council.

The post office at Seymour has been remodeled and redecorated within the last few weeks. New lock boxes were installed in addition to those in use. The walls have been painted, the woodwork varnished, and the flooring has been laid.

PITCAIRN VISITED Pitcairn Island, made famous in story and film, was visited by an English man of war recently, nearly 150 years after another British ship, the Bounty, carried a mutinous crew to seek a home there. VOECKS BROS. Better Meats.

- REMARKABLE -

Central Wisconsin is experiencing a remarkable Autumn this Year. Nearly 1-3 of November gone, and so far not a Sign of Snow, only a few Nights of Frost, and an honest-to-goodness Thunder-Shower just a few Days ago. But Old Man Winter is just around the Corner — nevertheless — and heavier, "square" Meats are now the Order of the Day. Keep Father and the Children on the up-and-up with Roasts, Steaks, Chops, Stews. MEAT IS THE MAINSTAY OF ANY MEAL.

Chapter 40
BACK TO THE SHIPS

"HELLO, Johnny," said Neill. "This is the guy who passed out in your cab Monday night, and whom you took to the Stafford. You came back the next morning to see how I was. Remember?"

"Sure, I remember you."

"Are you free, Johnny? Are you free for the whole night? I want to make a trip into the country."

"Well, I could be," said Johnny hesitatingly.

"Oh, I'll make it all right with you. I've got the jack."

"Okay, then," said Johnny.

"Good boy! Fill up your tank and meet me on some quiet corner off the center of town. You say where, and I'll drive there in another cab."

"Make it the corner of Lombard and Eutaw. That's quiet enough at this hour."

"Okay."

Johnny was waiting for him. He greeted Neill with a grin that spread all the way across his wizened face. They shook hands heartily. Neill felt a real liking for the little fellow. He was square. When the other cab had departed, Johnny asked:

"Well, where away, Cap'n?"

"I don't exactly know."

Johnny's jaw dropped as if he thought his fare was slightly demerol.

Neill laughed. "We must stop at a filling station and get a map of Maryland so we can pick out our route. I want you to take me down the west side of the Potomac river. The road on the east side is watched by the state police. I'll have to pick out the spot on the map where I want you to drop me. It's about 80 miles."

"Gee!" said Johnny cheerfully. "A mystery? Give us the dope, Cap'n."

"I can't tell you the whole story now," said Neill. "But I will soon. I can give you one tip the big guy who gave me knockout drops on Monday night was Prescott Fanning."

Johnny let out a whistle. "Well I be dogged! And was it you croaked the so-and-so?"

"Not me. Somebody saved me the trouble."

"Well, I wouldn't of blamed you," said Johnny.

"Let's go."

Neill's last act before leaving town was to call up Mattingly.

"Look, old fellow, there's no use you waiting for me any longer. I've had a clue that's taking me to Washington."

Neill could hear the honest constable breathing hard into the receiver. "But ... but ... my orders was to bring you back with me," he objected.

"Sorry," said Neill.

"You've got to come back with me."

"I don't know what you're going to do about it," said Neill cheerfully, because "I'm on my way." He hung up laughing.

Lifting A Skiff

Two hours later the taxicab came out on the river at a point where a side road ended at a steamboat wharf. As near as Neill could judge, they were opposite the spot where the big ships were moored. The river was over a mile wide, and the opposite shore was lost in the misty darkness.

Except for the shed on the wharf, there were no buildings nearby except a cottage standing on the top of a grassy bank about 30 feet above. Probably the home of the wharf tender. No light showed in any window. The heavy scent of wild-grape flowers hung on the air. There was no wind and a silence brooded over the countryside that made the city driver mummur:

"Boy! It would scare you down here when you turn off the engine."

"It's a great country," said Neill. "If a man could only quiet down long enough to appreciate it!"

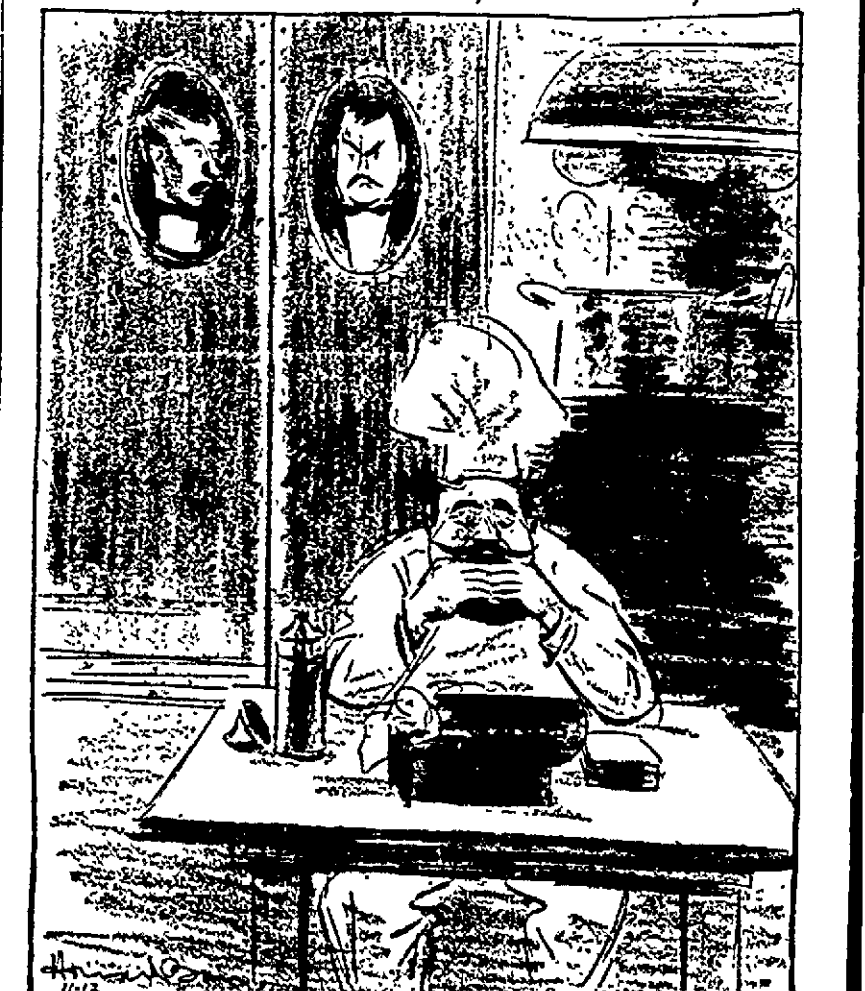

"Do I leave you now?"

"Wait until I make sure that there's a boat"

Neill found a skiff tied to a line running out to a post, and pulled it in. There were no oars in her, but he was beginning to learn the customs of the country now. Searching inside the gate of the wharf-tender's

Fish Propagation, Protection Main Function of Conservation Division

Editor's Note: As usual during the fall season, thousands of Wisconsin sportsmen are thinking in terms of wild life. Official watch-dog of the state's natural resources, forests, lakes, streams, fish and game, and the agency which is perpetuating and increasing them is the state conservation department. The following article is the first of several which will outline the most important work of the department.

BY JOHN W. WINGARD
(Post-Crescent Macdon Bureau)
Madison—From the standpoint of the ordinary sportsman, the most important work which is being done by the state conservation department is fish protection and propagation, in which Wisconsin now leads most other states in the nation.

The state conservation department is now 70 years old, although it has been reorganized and changed frequently. It spends roughly $2,000,000 annually, most of which is realized from sportsmen's licenses, and has a total payroll of more than 500 employees, not including emergency help.

It was back in 1874 that a citizen conceived the idea of artificial fish propagation by the state government. That year the first fish commission was chosen, and a small appropriation made for the maintenance of a small fish hatchery, one of the first in the United States.

One Billion Fish
From that time forward, fish propagation has been a continued policy of Wisconsin, until today the state can point to a 1937 record production exceeding one billion fish of many varieties.

And because of that early start, and continuous progress through experimentation, "there is still good fishing in Wisconsin, even though the number of fishermen has increased greatly," according to burly, serious Harley W. McKenzie, present executive head of the conservation department.

After more than half a century of work, state fish propagation today has assumed the size of a big business. There are 31 state hatcheries, employing many men, and millions of young fish distributed to streams and lakes of the state every year.

Because of large-scale production, McKenzie reports, costs have been kept down, so that today Wisconsin hatches and raises fish at a lower cost than any other state in the United States.

It cost Wisconsin about $298 per million fish produced last year, while the national average was about $821. Because 1937 production jumped about 40 per cent, it is likely that the proportionate cost this year will be even less.

State fish propagation is carried out in three ways. A large part of the fish raised are the off spring of parent stock kept in the state hatcheries the year around. Also a large percentage is obtained from spawn taken from breeder fish by state crews operating with nets. A third method is through letting contracts to commercial fishermen who turn over spawn to the state in return for the privilege of fishing during a closed season. This is the method used for obtaining spawn for the Great Lakes hatcheries, at Sturgeon Bay, Sheboygan, and Bayfield.

This latter method, incidentally, has been the subject of much furious dispute in recent years. Those fishermen who do not get contracts to fish on the lakes during the closed season vehemently claim that the method is worthless, that the same end could be achieved by allowing the fish to propagate naturally in their ordinary environment during the closed season.

Lake Trout
The three hatcheries produce lake trout, this year numbering 23,557,000, which are planted in the Great Lakes bordering the state, and Green Bay.

Another method of obtaining fish is through rescue work, principally during the spring season, when fish are salvaged from sloughs and other places where they have been trapped by suddenly receding waters.

Many of the fish raised are distributed directly to waters of the state by the conservation department. But many others are distributed through local groups of cooperating sportsmen who raise the little fish, plant them when they attain a suitable size.

The department, explains Director McKenzie, tries to follow an equitable system of distribution, so that all the adaptable waters of each county receive some plantings each year.

Statistics on distribution for all of this year are not yet available, but according to B. W. Webster, superintendent of the state fisheries division, northeastern Wisconsin counties through July 10 received a substantial amount of young fish.

Outagamie, Brown, and Calumet county plantings were not made until later in the summer, so that figures on that area are not yet available, Webster explained. But Waupaca county, for example, got 3,450,000 young fish, and Winnebago, 9,857,000, which the department hopes will provide plenty of recreation for Valley fishermen during 1938 and following seasons.

Shawano county up to July 10 had received 58,169,000 young fish, while Oconto got 8,157,000.

New Program
Lately the state has developed a new fisheries program, one which attempts to supplement production operations by improving and protecting the natural habitat of various species of fish. In this work, WPA and CCC aid has been a great advantage, according to department officials.

The department explains that it is almost impossible to determine how many of the one billion fish planted this year will live to enhance fisherman, but it is a certainty that no more fish can be raised than the water in which they are planted can support.

To enhance the fish population in the state's best waters, the department has developed a program of stream side planting, deepening of streams in order to cool them for certain varieties, restoring natural balances in lakes, and controlling the pollution of waters which is so damaging to fish and other aquatic life.

Present policy of the department is to stress the rearing of all fish which can be reared to a larger size before distribution, although adherence to this plan has not decreased total output. A large part of the total production, for instance, is in muskellunge, which are grown to a considerable size before distribution. Along with this policy the department is working with the Wisconsin Geological and Natural History Survey in conducting fish food studies in Wisconsin waters. The state hopes through these studies to get material of value in the future fisheries program.

Recently Director McKenzie outlined a program of even greater expansion for the future in fish propagation. His first proposal, the establishment of a scientific laboratory for use in fish investigations has already been realized. Dr. Edward Schmeberger has been recently chosen fish biologist for the department and will shortly establish headquarters at Madison. He is now stationed at Sturgeon Bay.

Other proposals of McKenzie, including oxygen tanks, establishment of artificial muskellunge hatcheries; new propagation facilities for increased production of bass, crappies, bluegills, trout and other larger species; expansion of fish food canning operations to take care of immediate canning of all rough fish caught by state crews.

yard, he found the oars in the grass, and silently brought them down.

"It's a darn shame to lift the man's skiff," said Neill. "But I'll make it up to him."

He and Johnny shook hands. "You'll be hearing from me," said Neill. "Don't start your engine until I get away from the shore. It might wake up somebody in the house."

"Good luck," said Johnny. Neill rowed out on the dark river. After a minute or two he heard Johnny start his engine. The lights were switched on, and the taxi turned in, in each window the glass was faintly reflecting the star-shine. Naturally she couldn't hear his signal. Why on earth should she close the windows when she was expecting him?

Then he remembered that it was impossible for Janet to move the stiff windows.

In the first moment the bottom seemed to drop out of everything. What had happened? Had somebody been there? Had she been taken away? How could he get aboard without the ladder?

He set his teeth, and got himself under control. He rowed around the foot of the boarding-ladder, and tied his skiff alongside the ship. He didn't know if the extra guards were aboard tonight and he didn't much care. If Janet was gone, nothing mattered. There were no lights showing in Captain Bickel's cabin.

Neill finds Janet being cross-examined by the police, tomorrow.

English Police Use Maps to Spot Crime in Advance

Confusion Is Mask for Efficiency of Scotland Yard

BY JOHN H. MARTIN

London—(P)—Within the granite walls of London's famous police organization all is confusion. But efficiency never had a better mask.

In cramped offices off the labyrinthian corridors of Scotland Yard, mild-mannered men smoothly direct the activities of 21,000 uniformed bobbies and inspectors who supply the germ of countless fiction "thrillers."

Charts and maps are emphasized in tracking criminals over Greater London, an area of some 700 miles filled with eight and a half million persons.

Keep Tab On Bad Spots

Small flags show every crime-infested neighborhood and what the crime was. Officers who study these charts often know in advance the most likely place where a marauder will appear.

Teleprinters flash news to all affected police stations and signal lights atop police boxes summon roving bobbies, some of whom ride bicycles. Morse code instead of voice is favored for radio communications with cruising police cars.

The yard never enters a national case unless it is asked. Its only national functions are the fingerprint and criminal record divisions. From 25,000 to 30,000 prints are added yearly to the collection now totaling six million.

The yard is a great listener, its memory mechanical but no less amazing. It sets up every hypothesis of the defense. Not until every possibility in the defendant's favor has been dissipated does the yard crack down on a man. Then it usually is just a matter of court procedure before sentence is passed.

Bobbies Unarmed
In the detective personnel of more than 1,000 plain clothesmen are squads of five men who work under one chief. Each of these men has charge of a group. All go about their work showing extraordinary ability for keeping out of each other's way.

Scotland Yard bobbies are unarmed. They carry short wooden truncheons for use in extreme cases, but they count on their fists mainly. The detectives, too, only draw on the large store of weapons at headquarters when they're assaulted of a rough time. Gunplay in England is rare.

Pathologist Is 'Sherlock'
The yard's great consulting "Sherlock" is the prominent pathologist, Sir Bernard Spilsbury. Scoring heroics, he works in his laboratory in Gray's Inn road, never rushing to the scene of the crime for overlooked clues. He barks at lesser minds. He gets the facts and sets to work, combining intelligence and common sense with his knowledge of medical science.

Don't get the idea Scotland Yard is infallible, although you may think it should be when you learn there are an estimated 20 policemen to every known criminal in London.

Just north of even country, there are many unsolved murders and notorious robberies on the yard's crime sheet.

The Brighton truck murders, for instance, are still unsolved. In both cases, the hacked remains of a woman were found in a trunk that had been checked at the Brighton railway station.

Crime Bill Is $135,000,000
There is one criminal foot. A notorious petty burglar who got his name by wearing flannel stripes or socks over his shoes to deaden his movements. His exploits have amused the English and confounded the yard for more than 25 years.

Officially, the home secretary is head of the yard but actively Sir Philip Game is. An ex-army man, Sir Philip is busy modernizing equipment and methods, and trying to reduce London's contribution to the nation's annual crime bill, estimated at $135,000,000.

It is also trying to show that only about one-half of one percent of all insects are harmful to human or plant life while the rest either help to control harmful insects, help to pollinate the plants on which man and his domestic animals depend for food, or at the worst, are merely harmless.

Old Age Pensions Total $21,813 in Waupaca County

$13,133 in Dependent
Children's Aid, $975
Paid to Blind

Waupaca — Work in the county pension department has increased tremendously during the last year, according to a report of the pension advisory committee which was accepted by the county board Thursday morning. Members of that committee are E. J. Perkins, chairman, Richard Schoepke, vice chairman, and E. E. Russell, secretary.

As was anticipated, the work will continue to increase as time goes on and new laws are enacted and new interpretations of the laws are made, the report stated. Old age assistance is and will remain the biggest problem from the standpoint of dollars and cents, but considering the number of relief cases absorbed in the past and the number confronting the department for the future, the different forms of pensions solve most economically the manner of caring for relief problems, the committee believes.

Until recently in making the budget for old age assistance, a small amount has been allowed for medicine, but a recent opinion of the attorney general makes it possible to allow up to the maximum, $30, for medical care. For example, if a grant has been made up to $20, then $30 is allowed for medical aid. Funeral expenses up to a maximum of $85 also are allowed.

Below Average
The estimated number of persons over 65 in Waupaca county during August was 3,241 and 536 were on the pension rolls. The average percent on rolls in state is 16.9 per cent, and that of Waupaca county, 16.5 per cent. The percentage now receiving aid in various counties varies from 6.4 per cent to 15.9 per cent. The range in the state of amount of grants is from $12.66 to $25.50. Waupaca county is midway between the high and the low, or $18.43. The rate of increase of number on rolls in state is 15.1 per cent, Waupaca county 10 per cent, so Waupaca is well below all of the averages cited.

According to the report, the number of applications for dependent children's aid received the last three months far exceeds the average. This is due principally to the recent decision of the attorney general whereby any mother having children and whose husband is partially incapacitated for work, may apply for and be given aid depending on the extent of incapacitation. To determine this degree involves a great deal of extra investigation and consideration in determining the allowance. Thus, according to the committee, will likely result in an increase of denials.

There are 18 pensions for the blind in Waupaca county. Owing to the fact that applicants who attain the age of 65 become eligible for age pensions there has been removed from the blind pension rolls 12 who qualified for old age assistance.

In the administration of the department extra help has been necessary at times, and due to more demands by the social security board permanent help will soon be required to care for collections, claims and property records.

Johnson's Report
Pension Administrator Hugh C. Johnson submitted his second annual report to the county board Wednesday morning. A report which covered the first full year of operation, Oct. 1, 1936 to Sept. 30, 1937, and covered in table form the statistics of the department:

Old age assistance totalled $21,813.40; state average, $19.60 per month; Waupaca county average, $18.43 per month.

Dependent children's aid totalled $13,133.00; the state average per

Reynolds Speaker At Board Dinner

Taxpayers' Alliance Official Speaks on 'Shall We Pay as We Go?'

Waupaca — Paul M. Reynolds, executive director of the Wisconsin Taxpayers' Alliance, was the guest speaker at a meeting of Waupaca county board members Thursday noon, when they met at the county asylum for dinner. Mr. Reynolds' subject, "Shall We Pay as We Go?" was a discussion of state, county, and municipal indebtedness.

Declaring that Waupaca county was in relatively good condition, getting along with the same old courthouse and trying to keep out of debt, he said more would be expected from this county because it is not over-burdened with bonded indebtedness. "The money will be placed where the need is, or where the board thinks the need is," he said.

Paul Roman, district attorney, gave a brief Armistice day address immediately preceding that of Mr. Reynolds.

child, $14.12; Waupaca county average per child, $12.50.
Blind pension totalled $975.60; state average payment, $21.87; Waupaca county average payment, $18.33.

Cost of administration for the year was $4,151.81. Total estate collections for year were $1,429.05, the 20 per cent retained by the county amounting to $285.81. The actual cost to the county of this department is $39,788.09.

Compared to reports of last year, blind pension payments showed a decrease due to transfer of 12 cases to Old Age Assistance. Dependent children aid has shown little increase for the first eleven months of the year but will probably increase rapidly for the next few months due to the attorney general opinion which opens the rolls to quite an extent. Old age assistance has shown a steady increase both in size of grants and in numbers but still not as large as anticipated.

Estate collections, as reported by Administrator Johnson while not a large item, will increase. It is estimated that the increase will not be over 5 per cent and may possibly decrease to nothing if no property requirement is required by the state legislature. Some liberalization of the law was made at the last session but will not materially affect this county.

Mr. Johnson's report was adopted by the board Thursday morning.
